Research Plan

GROUP 3: Feifey Seren Sophie

1. Background

Since the COVID-19 pandemic, the way we work has been in flux. From a sudden shift to remote work, return to office mandates, and hybrid compromises, the workplace now has to prove its value to workers.

According to the 2024 Flexible Work Models Pulse Survey by WTW, 84% of company leaders believe face-to-face time boosts employee engagement within teams, 71% say it strengthens company culture, and 64% see increased collective productivity by promoting personal interaction of teams. Employees report improved collaboration, feeling more connected to their organizations, and better mentorship opportunities while working in the office. Gallup studies show that highly engaged employees achieve more productivity, profitability, and higher wellbeing.

The benefits of an in-person workplace are not universally agreed upon, however. Remote work has many benefits that employees are reluctant to let go of, like more flexibility and improved work-life balance. Now that employees have shown what they can accomplish with remote work, they are demanding more of their workplaces to be more than a place to connect to wifi. This is further exacerbated by tensions between employers and employees and how they view work, productivity, and collaboration.

Points of tension in this new work environment:

Executives optimizing for productivity, visibility, and collaboration vs. Employees prioritizing autonomy, flexibility, and work-life balance.

Organizations pushing for full return-to-office mandates vs. Employees who see them as outdated or punitive.

Companies trying to rebuild culture in person vs. Employees who feel culture is about values and leadership, not just physical presence.

Growth of “third spaces” e.g. cafés, social clubs, fitness centers, etc. competing with traditional offices as hubs of collaboration, networking, and inspiration.

Current office design fails to take into account the needs of in-person workers to communicate with remote workers. E.g. the need for meeting rooms, zoom booths, and other private spaces that create a seamless collaboration experience for both in-person and remote workers.

1.1 Client Introduction: Industrious

CBRE is the world's largest commercial real estate firm with 500+ offices across 100+ countries. “CBRE runs more workplaces than anyone else on earth,” said Jamie Hodari, Chief Executive Officer of CBRE’s Building Operations & Experience segment. “That’s a privilege, but it’s also a responsibility. Increasingly, our clients want to make their workplaces welcoming, empowering, human-centered places, and if we can help them pull that off, that will make work more rewarding for tens of millions of people.”

Our client, Industrious, one of the top US coworking space operators, was acquired by CBRE in early 2025. They have more than 160 locations in 65+ cities globally.

“How we work has fundamentally changed,” said Annie Dean, future-of-work expert recently tapped to lead the new CBRE x Industrious Building Experience Lab. “Businesses collaborate through technology, which has never been more true in the age of AI. When everything is virtual, the real world matters more than ever. And as a result, the world is ready for a different kind of workplace experience. We need to turn workplace functions from a cost-center, shared-services mentality into a strategic business unit that delivers ROI and shifts from space utilization into a user-centered mentality and processes that look like product development cycles.”

1.1.1 Team at Industrious

1.2 Service Overview

Industrious offers a variety of workspaces designed to accommodate the needs of companies of all sizes and stages. All shared workplaces include access to common areas such as cafés, meeting rooms, lounges, and wellness rooms.

These workspaces include:

Offices: A private office for your team — fully-furnished and move-in ready.

Suites: An upgraded office with lounges, open workstations, and conference rooms.

Other membership offerings:

Access Memberships are monthly membership plans that let you work from our common areas everyday, plus reserve a desk that's all yours when you need it.

Industrious Virtual Memberships provide businesses with a professional mailing address at any of our 160+ locations, exclusive member benefits, and the Industrious' full range of on-site services, amenities, and spaces.

Each Industrious location is staffed Monday – Friday from 8:00 AM – 5:00 PM by a Member Experience Manager and Member Experience Associate(s). Members have access to a curated list of exclusive offers for products and services that support their business, productivity, health and wellness, and more. Industrious holds regular networking events, community gatherings, and professional programming for members on-site. Recent examples of events at an NYC building include: Fall Fest Farmer's Market, an evening of Puerto Rican Bomba and Plena Music, and Halloween Happy Hour.

1.2.1 Who's Who

Property owner: the person or group who owns the building. They aim to fill their building with tenants who sign a lease to rent space for a set period of time.

Tenant company: one of many groups that rent space in a building to provide a workspace for their workers. They pay rent to the property owner.

Workers: a person who works for a tenant company. Their office space is in the building owned by the property owner and leased by their company.

Industrious: a hospitality services company that partners with the property owner to provide an elevated workplace experience and amenities to the companies and their workers.

2. Hypothesis & Assumptions

3. Research Goals and Approach

3.1 Research Goals

To explore how different worker types experience and value coworking spaces, in order to design community programs and amenities that foster stronger belonging, engagement, and ultimately higher member retention at Industrious.

What does industrious generally workspace and engagement.

3.1.1 Objective 1: Understand What Drives Long-Term Commitment Across Different Worker Types

What we will explore:

- What makes hybrid workers (1-3 days/week) versus full-time office users (4-5 days/week) decide to renew their membership?
- How do retention factors differ between solo freelancers, small teams, and mid-size company teams?
- What role do community belonging and amenity satisfaction play in members' decision to stay long-term versus leave?
- At what point in the membership lifecycle (3 months? 6 months? 12 months?) Do members decide whether to commit long-term or churn?

3.1.2 Objective 2: Map Community Engagement Preferences and Barriers by Worker Type

- What types of community interactions resonate with different worker types?
 - Do hybrid workers prefer structured events vs. spontaneous encounters?
 - Do solo workers seek different interactions than teams?
 - Do introverted workers need different community touchpoints than extroverted networkers?
- Why do some members actively engage while others remain isolated?

- What prevents low-engagement members from participating in community activities?
- Are barriers logistical (time, schedule), psychological (feeling out of place), or preference-based (prefer to work alone)?
- How does community belonging influence office attendance frequency and sense of value from the membership?

Success Metric: Create a community engagement spectrum that maps different worker types to their preferred interaction styles and identify top 3 barriers for each low-engagement segment

3.1.3 Objective 3: Identify High-Impact Amenities That Drive Value for Different Use Cases

- Which amenities are "must-haves" that directly influence retention versus "nice-to-haves" that enhance but don't drive the core value?
- How do amenity needs differ by:
 - Work mode: What amenities make hybrid workers choose to come in versus work from home?
 - Work style: What do collaborative teams need versus focused solo workers?
 - Purpose of visit: Deep work days versus client meeting days versus social/networking days?
- What gaps exist between current amenity offerings and actual member needs?
- Which new or improved amenities would increase office attendance, especially for hybrid workers who have the choice to work remotely?

3.1.4 Objective 4: Uncover the Relationships Between Worker Types, Community Engagement, Amenity Usage, and Retention

- Do certain worker types naturally engage more with community and amenities, leading to higher retention?
- Is there a correlation between community event participation and membership tenure?
- Do specific combinations of amenity usage + community engagement predict higher likelihood of renewal?
- Can we identify member archetypes (e.g., "Social Networker," "Quiet Focused Worker," "Team Collaborator") that have distinct needs and retention patterns?

3.2 Key Themes

3.2.1 Communities

A. Types of Community Interactions

- What forms of community engagement do different worker types prefer?
 - Structured events (workshops, happy hours, networking mixers)
 - Spontaneous encounters (kitchen conversations, elevator chats, shared lunch tables)
 - Professional collaboration (cross-company projects, skill-sharing, mentorship)
 - Digital community (Slack channels, member directories, online forums)
 - One-on-one connections versus group activities
- Do preferences vary by:
 - Work mode (hybrid vs. full-time)?
 - Personality type (introverted vs. extroverted)?
 - Work style (solo vs. team-based)?
 - Industry or professional background?

B. Barriers to Community Participation

- Why do some members actively engage while others remain isolated?
- What prevents low-engagement members from participating?
 - Logistical barriers: Time constraints, schedule conflicts, lack of awareness
 - Psychological barriers: Feeling out of place, social anxiety, imposter syndrome
 - Preference-based: Prefer to work alone, not interested in socializing at work
 - Structural barriers: Events don't match interests, activities feel forced or inauthentic
- How do barriers differ across worker types?

C. Sense of Belonging and Community Value

- What does "belonging" mean to different worker types?
- How important is community to the overall workplace experience?
- Does sense of belonging influence:
 - Office attendance frequency?
 - Membership satisfaction?
 - Likelihood to renew?
 - Word-of-mouth referrals?
- What creates authentic community versus forced or superficial interactions?

D. Community and Office Attendance

- Does community engagement drive office attendance, or vice versa?
- Do members come in more often on event days?
- For hybrid workers: Does knowing there's a community event influence the decision to come in versus work from home?
- How does the "social atmosphere" or "vibe" of the space affect the desire to be there?

3.2.2 Services and Amenities

A. Core Workspace Amenities

- Which baseline amenities are non-negotiable "must-haves"?
 - High-speed Wi-Fi reliability
 - Comfortable desks and ergonomic seating
 - Meeting rooms and private phone booths
 - Printing and technical support
 - Quiet zones versus collaborative areas
- How do workspace needs differ by:
 - Work mode (focused deep work vs. collaborative work vs. client meetings)?
 - Worker type (solo vs. team)?
 - Industry (creative vs. corporate vs. tech)?

B. Hospitality and Convenience Amenities

- What hospitality touches make the space feel elevated and worth the commute?
 - Daily breakfast and quality coffee/snacks
 - Reception and mail handling services
 - Clean and well-maintained facilities
 - Friendly and responsive staff
- What convenience services would reduce friction and save time?
 - On-site services (dry cleaning, barber, package delivery)
 - Stocked supplies (phone chargers, adapters, office supplies)
 - Food options (catered lunches, snack delivery)

C. Wellness and Comfort Amenities

- How do wellness amenities impact the workplace experience?
 - Wellness/mother's rooms for privacy
 - Natural light and air quality
 - Ergonomic furniture and standing desks
 - Outdoor spaces or access to fresh air
 - Quiet/meditation spaces
- Do wellness amenities influence:

- Decision to come into the office?
- Ability to focus and be productive?
- Overall wellbeing and job satisfaction?

D. Social and Collaborative Amenities

- Which amenities facilitate community building and collaboration?
 - Communal kitchens and coffee areas
 - Lounge spaces and comfortable seating
 - Event spaces for gatherings
 - Outdoor terraces or social areas
- How do social spaces influence:
 - Spontaneous interactions between members?
 - Sense of community and belonging?
 - Office attendance on event days?

E. Amenity Gaps and Unmet Needs

- What amenities are competitors offering that Industrious isn't?
- What services or features would members be willing to pay extra for?
- What "missing" amenities would:
 - Increase office attendance frequency (especially for hybrid workers)?
 - Improve retention and likelihood to renew?
 - Differentiate Industrious from competitors?
- How do unmet needs vary by worker type?

F. Amenity Value and ROI

- How do members evaluate the value of amenities relative to membership cost?
- Which amenities have the highest perceived value versus actual usage?
- Do certain amenities justify the commute for hybrid workers?
- What combination of amenities creates a "premium" experience worth paying for?

4. Intended Outcomes / Deliverables

4.1 Research Based Outcomes

- Worker Segmentation
Develop a clear segmentation of different worker types, outlining their key needs, motivations, pain points, and workspace behaviors.
- Community Insights
Generate insights into how community programming, amenities, and services shape member engagement, satisfaction, and sense of belonging within Industrious spaces.
- Retention Drivers
Identify the key factors that influence member retention — understanding what encourages members to stay and what leads them to leave.
- Insight Map / Personas
Create a synthesized insight map or set of personas that visually represent worker types and their relationship with the overall Industrious experience.

4.2 Actionable Outcomes

- Engagement Strategies
Develop engagement strategies that foster stronger social connections, active participation, and emotional attachment among members across various locations.
- Retention Roadmap
Create a retention improvement roadmap that links key user experience touchpoints — from daily interactions to community events.
- Future Opportunity Areas
Define concept directions and opportunity areas for future service innovations or programming initiatives that enhance the overall Industrious experience.

Research Framing and Discussion Guide

Research Objectives

To understand how different worker types experience and perceive coworking spaces, in order to design community programs, amenities, and services that enhance engagement, sense of belonging, and long-term member retention at Industrious locations.

Research Themes

Topic	Key Research Themes	Rationale
Introduction / Icebreaker	- First experience in the coworking space and initial impressions - Typical usage patterns and daily routines in the space - Motivation for using the space and work habits	To build rapport with the participant and establish context for their experiences, behaviors, and preferences in the coworking space
Community Engagement	- Moments when participants felt the community atmosphere - Specific events or interactions and their outcomes - Times when participation felt uncomfortable or disengaged - Impact of community activities on office attendance - Sense of belonging and what triggers it	To understand how members engage with the community, barriers to participation, and how community influences attendance, satisfaction, and retention
Workspace & Amenity Usage	Amenity Usage (15 min) - Experiences when the space facilitated productivity and effectiveness - Instances when lack of amenities negatively affected work - Facilities or services that made the office “worth coming to” - Social and collaborative spaces used and related interactions - Stories where amenities or services influenced renewal or continued	To identify high-impact amenities, usage patterns, and the influence of workspace features on member satisfaction, engagement, and retention membership

Retention & Membership Decisions	- Situations and factors influencing membership renewal - Considerations that led to potential churn - Daily interactions or events that reinforced staying - Critical decision points in membership lifecycle	To uncover key drivers and barriers for long-term membership, linking community engagement, amenity usage, and office experience to retention decisions
Wrap-Up	- Any remaining experiences, stories, or insights not covered - Examples illustrating overall satisfaction or challenges	To capture additional context or insights that might not have been addressed, ensuring a holistic understanding of the participant's experience

[Add background context: Why we're doing this, who we're partnering with (Industrious), how we're interested in the summation of learnings across people we met, data will be anonymous, they'll receive a $15 Amazon giftcard at the end]

Greeting

Hi [Interviewee Name], this is [Your Name] from SVA. Thanks for joining!
Do you still have about 40 minutes available for our conversation today?

[If yes → continue]

[If no → Can you reschedule? If no → Thank you anyway, we'll end here.]

Outline Purpose and Ask Permission

Thanks for your participation. Today we want to talk to you about your experience with coworking spaces. [brief pause]

We're partnering with Industrious to understand what people need from shared workspaces. Everything you share will be anonymous and only used for this research study. You'll receive a $15 Amazon gift card afterward.

With your permission, I'd like to record this session, only for use in this study. Is that okay?

[If yes → continue]

[If no → dismiss, no incentive]

Participant Setup

Before I ask you some background questions, I want to remind you that there are no right or wrong answers - just be yourself and share your honest thoughts.

I don't work for Industrious, I'm just collecting feedback for our research. Please be honest with both positive and negative thoughts. Nothing you say will hurt my feelings.

I will now begin recording the session.

[Make sure to tap record!]

Now that we're all set up, I'm going to ask you a few questions about yourself.

Ask for recording permission

A. Icebreaker (10min)

1. Can you briefly introduce yourself?

- a. What do you do, what is your job title, and how long have you been with your company?
- b. Do you usually work in-person, remote, hybrid? How often do you get into the office?
- c. In a typical week, how many days do you come to this space? Are those dates mandatory that you come in or you choose to come in? What makes you want to come in?
- d. [If hybrid] On other days, where do you work? Why do you work here instead of your office/co-working space?
- e. What factors do you weigh when you're deciding where to work that day?
- f. Can you share a recent example of choosing to come in, and what influenced that choice?

2. Walk me through what you did here yesterday (or your last visit).

- a. Where did you work?
 - b. What did you do?
3. Did you talk or collaborate with anyone while you were here? How did that usually happen?
- a. Did you participate in any work events or activities?
 - b. What influences your choice of where to sit or work?

B. Community Engagement (10 min)

1. Can you describe a time when you participated in a community activity and felt comfortable and engaged?
 - a. What kind of activities or events would make you want to join? Why?
 - b. Have community events or people here ever influenced your decision to come?
 - i. Can you tell me about a time that happened?
2. Tell me about a time when you felt uncomfortable or disengaged in this space or during a community activity.
3. What does "belonging" mean to you in a workspace?
 - a. Tell me more about that.
4. Can you describe a moment when you really noticed or felt the community atmosphere here?
 - a. What was the event? What happened?

C. Workspace & Amenity Usage (10 min)

1. Can you tell me about the amenities that you have in the working space?
2. Can you tell me about a recent time when the space or amenities helped you get your work done particularly well?
 - a. What was happening at that moment?
 - b. What about the space or amenities made things easier or better for you?
3. When you think about your workday here, which amenities or features matter most to you?
 - a. What makes those particular things important for you?
 - b. If one of them changed or went away, how, if at all, would that influence your experience or decision to keep using this space?
4. What makes this specific space feel "worth coming to," if it does?
 - a. How do the space, people, or atmosphere contribute to that feeling?
 - b. How might you describe that to a friend who's never been here?
5. Is there anything that feels missing or that could better support the way you work here?
 - a. Tell me more about how that affects your experience now.
 - b. What would be different for you if that were improved?
6. Have you seen anything in other offices or coworking spaces that you wish existed here?
 - a. What was it, and what about it worked well there?
 - b. How do you imagine it might affect your experience if it were available here?

D. What makes people stay/leave - Retention (10 min)

1. Can you recall a time when you thought about leaving the space?
 - a. What made you feel that way?

2. Can you tell me about a time when something in the space wasn't available or didn't work the way you expected?
 - a. What was the situation, and what didn't work or was missing?
 - b. How did that affect your work or your day?
3. Were there any obstacles that made it hard for you to feel engaged or connected?
(e.g., scheduling, social dynamics, the environment)
4. If you had the chance to change something about the space, what would you consider changing?
5. On the flip side, what experiences or features of the space made you want to stay?
 - a. What kept you coming back?
6. What is your ideal working environment?

E. Wrap-Up (3 min)

1. Is there any experience or story you think is important for understanding your office experience that we haven't discussed yet?

Can you share your preferred e-mail so I can process the Amazon $15 gift card.
You should receive this in the next week or so but if you don't feel free to follow-up with
chou4@sva.edu

Speaker 1 00:00:13,532 And so, I'll have you, I jump over to still be jumping as well as the you'll see your general overview and all. So, I think we invested in a pair of how much but—and so I'll, I'll show this, what this actually is I look like. And I—you see I'm Caroline, thanks so much for joining us today. The purpose of this session is to learn a lot more about you, how you work, specifically I really care about your experience of different workplaces or spaces that you use, your work office or a coworking space. I really care to understand how you would—why you go there, what would be a better fit for you to this office, and what would make a more engaging workplace designed for you. And I'm doing this in partnership with Industrious, which is a potential coworking space. And we're really trying to understand how many people—the perspectives around what motivates and incentivizes people to come to the office. So feel, feel like share your honest feedback. Nothing you say, whatever you feel, that is not right, wrong answers. And I'm going to do some analysis something as on a computer later on. And and that and this—you are not being compensated, but other people get compensated for participation in in a session. And as well, a caution like everything you say is an honor and that what you do, no analysis, I'm only working for control purposes than the duties. You have any questions from you before we get started? I I just want you to tell me a bit about yourself and what you do for work or school, and you can let me know how your work is day like day to day.

Speaker 2 00:01:44,072 I am a freelance consultant, so that means I—you know, I'm trying to attract to retain and with good plans but then also working on the projects. So I am very curious, I like working in third spaces with an—I also work a lot at home. Um, I do a lot of work both on Zoom and then just out and about, to interviews, going on site. And I enjoy working in coffee shops and libraries, but I'm very picky about which coffee shops or libraries where I work because I need access to certain things. Like I'm very mindful about outlets and being able to use the bathroom, no, because you know in New York sometimes you cannot use it at work.

Speaker 1 00:02:37,117 And as well, who are the clients that you tend to work with? Do you have an office space that you can go to, even if you are a freelance worker, who mentioned previously your studio is like a space that you can go to to what you need or not?

Speaker 2 00:02:50,377 It's very ad hoc. Like if we do need that, the space is like, you know, taking the time to delve, you know, what's the location, what are we trying—what are we trying to do with these things? So they're in a board room meeting, is it a like workshop where we want people to be in this space of play and be ready to engage? So it would be trying to have the right space on the backend and then, you know, inviting the client whoever else needs to be there. Ah, and then as the first party question, and—

Speaker 1 00:03:19,457 Not right now. And I'm just like, previous to your feelings were, and do you ever go into an office?

Speaker 2 00:03:26,935 No, I am a COVID kid. It happened right in my last semester of my undergraduate, and then when I graduated I went to my masters, and post masters I've always worked like a hybrid of it, for capacity I have now.

Speaker 1 00:03:44,806 Pause here a minute. Like now, I was actually recently—oh, oh, because now Christine doesn't have any access to an office space. She doesn't have a reference point. She only works in coffee shops and libraries. I can, of course, pull some insight like what they were to be, what might be interesting, but this isn't really the kind of the right or true right. Because ideally what we want is someone who works at Industrious, or someone else who is in a flexible coworking space and goes in, and ideally is something hybrid. So in this moment, what would your goal be to do?

Speaker 1 00:04:17,125 Is anyone else on really—this may not be the best type of data getting.

Speaker 3 00:04:21,407 I would probably pivot on that by the clients. Like where you are, like when—when did you—when you did get a location and booked a meeting or a workshop, like what types of things are you looking for at each of those?

Speaker 1 00:04:32,359 I love that. What other things would you do? Anyone else catch like, oh, this participant may not be the best fit for what we need? Yes. So now in a real time, you're not like, sorry, but I—I let's see what else. How can we pivot it? How can we look at your discussion guide and pull us? So I—I still suggest inferring to some of her experience in these other third spaces and understand how they're making decisions around that. That's one. What's another one?

Speaker 3 00:05:00,159 So be it, face it.

Speaker 4 00:05:05,788 That I don't know you.

Speaker 1 00:05:08,163 Yet, or have you thought? Have you considered what would make you want to consider a office? Right? You don't have to be there, but the thinking, the thought process.

Speaker 1 00:05:14,890 Of it might be one.

Speaker 4 00:05:16,047 Well, one of the things is, sir, he made me think so in your question, which was something about this—he said, and you had to be with the third place. So one of the questions that I'll show to me that is, say, "Well, will that be a consider a proper third place for her, and what will be the success for her?" And I think that now that you're basically asking, where is your dream—

Speaker 1 00:05:36,666 —office working space? And maybe it's the coffee shop/library. But if I be—so this is almost a magic wand question. Like what do you—I love that. Anything else that stands out?

Speaker 3 00:05:49,021 Like, uh, what does she, as a solo worker, value the most other than like a big company, because there's like different—

Speaker 1 00:06:00,219 There for missing more in her profile as a solo preneur versus like being a tacit employee with resources, amenities, right? Were I—you that good too. And I might also like do a hard pivot, because this was like a very clear referencing concrete past examples and data. But I should not making anything up. Ask speech: "What did you look at? Where did you go?" I might do a hard pivot which is like, "Imagine that your solo preneur like career, you asked yet—you may be wanting to look for a more stable job, then work at a company office space." "How—tell me a bit about your self decisions around what type of job you'll be or how important is now?" And then, "Tell me that how important is in wanting to have an office space versus being able to work at home?" "And then if you have an input to the office that you want to go to, tell me a bit more about that?" That's a very hard pivot, which is like a like a dream world, what would it be like, which is some of what you were talking about: third place. That's a good—it's a good use of the time of the interview. But we generally want to get as like higher references, concrete examples, and possible though. And—

Speaker 1 00:07:09,023 Yet, and I'm following out that this will happen in your life. This will happen in your contribution or like this person. You may not know this because you didn't—you didn't begin to review our recruit brief. You don't have all the demographic work and information right now. And how they are—to go in, you may get someone who like, "Oh, I'm fully remote, I don't have an office, I don't want to go to an office," and you may have thought that they are a hybrid worker. See, you need to be able to adjust in the moment. So let's—so but then Phil's question. So yet, you mentioned that sometimes you are looking for third places when you're working with your clients. How—tell me a bit about how you make that decision? How do where you got time to go?

Speaker 1 00:07:46,701 And where are you optimizing on in for a—

Speaker 1 00:07:48,839 —third space?

Speaker 2 00:07:50,006 So we have a a variety of clients and, you know, consumer goods. Um, so one of the times we are working with, like right now, is Apple. But then I'm also working with a University and Microsoft and a commercial real estate company. So there's a lot of variety, but they all kind of converge on one similar point. And the point of the project is kind of expand their current thinking. So the spaces that we're looking for are ones where that can enable that kind of play or people can kind of come into—they come and have themselves, are not feeling like, "Oh, I feel a little creative," or something, but it's something where it's like, "I'm here to step in, I'm here to be productive, and kind of challenge what I know," but in a very like comfortable, familiar way. So looking for spaces that like are—I'm trying to think alike—we found space with Microsoft in Boston. It has like their All-Stars theme, but it's like—it's specifically just small shops in conference rooms with this like whiteboard, TVs, and like a different table configurations to have them doing more electoral or more like a, you know, a more focused saying that's quite useful.

Speaker 1 00:09:00,158 And do you ever rent it like a WeWork or another coworking space like that? That you then used for a meeting room? Yes.

Speaker 2 00:09:10,975 Not that I know of, no.

Speaker 1 00:09:15,441 Yes, again, I'm pausing. She's like saying she's the decision maker for that. That may be a little bit higher to understand and you have like figured out or getting the right things around this. So, and but Christine sharing like getting good at booking micro-offices, do you think you're getting insight that is helpful for Industrious? Again, always connect what is this in line with what the project brief is? Is this the type of insight that will influence a recommendation or not asking questions? I ask questions we have been selected back to the business. Cool. So I'm kind of feeling because of the third spaces that you guys—that you talk about for your future plans are like Microsoft offices. It's—

Speaker 1 00:10:00,271 Yes, a little too far away from like the coworking space. So I'm going to probably pivot and say, "I'm curious like—I'd love to hear a bit." Your role is very piece meal, she said. "I'm curious like, have you ever thought about joining like a company full time or having more like a routine or structure in the work that you need so to an office or no not or not?"

Speaker 2 00:10:24,739 Really. Yes, I would definitely currently searching for positions that could offer me more a salary. And I placed my dental floor to very lovely. Ah, but for now I am currently exploring working space, specifically, The Verse, T H E V E R S E. They just opened a new building kind of like a like two blocks over. Ah, yes. It's really close, but it's an interesting working space because when I first started talking [to it]—University—it was in Chinatown. It was a bunch of creatives, a bunch of artists. It was like, you know, musicians were there, people recording in the studio, but then also like, "Hey, let's, you know, have like a"—it was clearly like like sex trivia. Like it was thinking a lot of on events. Ah, and then I went to another Verse six months later, and they had totally changed. Ah, and I didn't feel that it was a place for everyone I got could work any more inside.

Speaker 1 00:11:17,113 So right now I already said that to the extreme because, for worse, like is Microsoft even an option like away? Now I've heard there was a need for she thought, "I do need to find my own coworking space," I would now pivot like, "Tell me a bit what was that trigger? What led you to think that you wanted a coworking space?" And so that there already talking about a programming and, right, like the sex trivia and the creators, artists. And we know a lot of focus around community what you're trying to get out, right? It's now about productivity and now it's about size. We had it's around the table, people that are there, the type of events and programming that's all interesting to her. It's not around amenities like the workspace, et cetera. It's all in my head and say, "Great, send it on now." So I love the fact that, "Tell me about, tell me what led you to start looking for a space like, what would you try to optimize or to get from that one space that working at a library or a coffee shop was not?"

Speaker 2 00:12:08,965 Really, it was totally by happenstance. I got invited to a like a third generation culture pop-up. And everyone came and I was like, "Where is this link?" It felt like an office, but that isn't the way it feels, what you define to me, an office. And now it all is such an important space. Ah.

Speaker 1 00:12:27,182 "It's too fun to be an office, right?" I've heard that. I want to write that. I might feel nervous to quote around it, and then I want to pull that. And later who Industrious is, what I want to know, "What makes it a way too fun to be an office?"

Speaker 2 00:12:38,438 And your, ah.

Speaker 1 00:12:43,410 "The way too fun to be an office, what about that? Give me some examples of the if the"—

Speaker 2 00:12:47,129 It felt like, ah, so anyone seen the movie The Internship? It's about the guys again in Google, and then they walk in the doors to Google and there's like slides everywhere of people going down, people that have their dogs. This wasn't dogs, but it it felt like that. Where it's like, I turned and people had literally like—I turned and there was like a music studio where people were recording. I turned over there, there's like a people—a couple were on a computer doing some like, you know, CS stuff. And then there was like people sitting in like the total beanbag chairs, just like lounging around, just having a chat with like the kitchen. So it was just like, "Look, everyone here is working, but like not your traditional, like I miss it where people work," it's like, "You know, the whole work is here". Tell me—

Speaker 1 00:13:31,011 A little bit about th—why that's important to be surrounded like creators, artists, like pop-up coding for—what makes it why not work for you? And the—

Speaker 2 00:13:40,325 Work, I think in the city. I think right now in this moment there's a lot of solo preneurs. And then for a third space, it's really ideal. It is a place for it. Like it's not home and it's not work, but it's a place where I can show up fully as myself, engaged, and be productive. You know, kind of stimulate my mind, but then also like it's not a place where I dread going, "Oh my God, I have a 3 o'clock and I have to, you know, whatever see that guy or see the people or," ah, it is just purely a place where I could be fully present and engaged. Pause.

Speaker 1 00:14:15,755 And I'm just summarizing correctly that that is—what you are saying and what you're looking for in an office is a place that you could be your full self, or not just the work self, but you could come up fully present, engaged, whether you're coding or you do something else. Am I getting that correct? Tell me about that.

Speaker 2 00:14:34,132 Yes. I'm very much a community and in-person and get my energy from people. And I enjoy working with other people. And with the kind of work I do, collaboration is particularly work naturally. So places where that can kind of happen naturally because it was a thing as too that all are very important to me and where I tend to seek at.

Speaker 4 00:14:54,904 Or—

Speaker 1 00:14:55,962 So then, the creators and the artists and other people at work in. Is it perceived or how will you imagine trapping with that? Like you just like being surrounded by the by artists and want to know them? Like, talk to me a bit about that. For I told you about how like you are drawn to these people, you feel part of the community, and how do you want to interact with the community?

Speaker 2 00:15:14,798 The Verse. So the events themselves are always like, you know, not for full professional. It's not under the guise of like, "Oh, like network and have some wine," or whatever. It's like, "Hey, there's like—we're doing dumb things," making "Hey, we're showing the soup and we're doing karaoke." "Like come to Verse at like 10 o'clock at night," so like 2 AM and just to karaoke. Ah, which is a really good time. Ah, but I think that the way that these events are and the way that those spaces are curated is almost like, how would you say, the living room? Where it's like, you can—if your best friend's house living were, you have to walk in and you're in a like what's comfortable, and you don't feel awkward that they're within. And also, ah, I'm just talked to them because Verse is like, "I know you're probably wanting to use some of the the job that needs the space to work," to, however, "And we're probably kind of one or less in the same mold," you know, we're both ambitious. But it always and the conversation is naturally to some things, it's all—

Speaker 1 00:16:18,663 As—

Speaker 1 00:16:20,042 Well, so I write her, "Helpful, interesting, at all". The really great clothes and Verse is the culture of artists for creators. And which I know Industrious is on the higher end, more premium rate. So they may never do this completely. But the reason, a change, the reason why I didn't actually go through the the membership is because there was like some—

Speaker 2 00:16:40,022 Like I'm not to to do the ah, answer the girls, whatever. But like, those a bunch of the tech startup people that started coming and they started having programs. And they actually took over the period of people programs. So a bunch of my friends that like now were the the artists that were influences, were into these together and into this, ah. So I was going to pull the trigger on getting the membership. But basically they were saying like, "Friday nights, it's cool, choosing the cool as the sun," I anything. But they're like, "During the day, it's an interest," because there could be people in the room that like, you know, "You're working in your thing here," like it's a co-op, you know. It is you for all your work. But there's—there's a very kind of energy that's like I don't know. I think a culture, it's a a behavioral thing that like, I don't know what happened as like when it first in controversially in that area, it was great, I posted one. Ah, but then it's just like over time, I think, you know, it got more popular. And then there were some beginning people that were like, you know, more of the technical, than it over time became the tech place. And now are—

Speaker 1 00:17:47,723 And some other trap I might be that might please, he doubled the advocate. See, I'm saying a lot of eventually something making karaoke into a. And to then it's not a professional event, right? Or networking. So my good, "Oh, that's a simple event," but I guess is, this is a coworking space. Is it the purpose there to do work and get stuff done and collaborate and be productive? Like how does something making a—there I feel like to help you in your work life, which of course, we do, it does. So if I'm trying to get a more—to get a deeper a context with the why things are important by saying, "Of what side of it?" "So why—why would you—you doing something making karaoke, how that help you to work?"

Speaker 2 00:18:24,661 The Verse remind me of the student center at my undergraduate school. Which was like, you—you have the porter like in the lock in and I may go, "My lot, so far my coffee". I may talk to no one. And then, I'm get a—after two or three hours of that, I need to get up and like, "Oh, I want to walk around, see some friends, I do like take a breather". And I can just go somewhere else in the student center where there's like their snacks or there's the cafe and I can like eat, talk to good my friends, ah, were checked out watching TV. Ah, and then get right back to it. And there's a in between where there's just like—it's purely the social events. Like I'm going programming for, you know, love or other having a show and I can go and watch the show now. Ah, but all of it is a part of my student experience or both my mental experience. And all of it, I think, you know, basically produced by either giving me the rest I need or, you know, the singular—

Speaker 3 00:19:20,565 And then a part question better.

Speaker 4 00:19:28,962 Why you can win the so trying to like ask it together. Because it was in a moment which she was explaining also about Verse and everything she mentioned or the experience in their moments and made me be all—I thought to think about question about, ah, how she sees at the value of the service in that one moment. Said that as to the what a question perfectly. That he's really he attached to this moment, which is what defined. And they will be up all our questions if something about regarding like, "Oh, ah, well, but how does it has and the body translate and has translated her to her professional myself and how has it allowed for this ambitious thing that is be?" So those two questions I cannot have been trying getting together that the really backs back because she talks a lot of about it. It is not me, the probable Industrious can see then because they have to be able to translate. And—

Speaker 1 00:20:27,967 Yes. And here I like that you made that connect to work, not in her professional self as well. But she gets some Industrious as asking us about work, this each one. How to me get the fun there, but you want to do that also for the benefit of the end user, which is you are getting a personal benefit, both professionally, personally, et cetera. And said, you like that? I—what—what's the benefit you get out this? I'm actually avoiding to go specific on programming because I know that my you want to know what should we be offering, what should we be doing? We have some ideas that, you know, doing karaoke, but I want to not focus specific, I want to focus for a—I don't want some specific things like here you should be doing karaoke. But is on the being on top, which is, is it social, is it educational, is it professional, is it collaborative? Like those seen buckets of events, and I can now understand what's the most valuable for her. So and say, so I think I should ever see some of the mess. "Like, close it out, of you, you doing thing, you like the fun in between space before, if you walk in, you I walk in and I feels like it's a space was expanded and invented on what would resonate close with you?" "And and tell me a bit about free thoughts and with a programming?" Because she might not say something like educational or a bunch of seminars, right? But I want to get that into her head so she can respond. But there is, "Yes, you know, so as I provided, what are your thoughts on having like that more game or a meeting other creators?" The least space like bringing in a musician to talk about how they created this light where don't just like it bar like hang out having free out like free years in their best with people that are naturally.

Speaker 2 00:22:05,711 So, The Verse on Tuesday night has like their little of tea nuts nights. And they just make tea and everyone in Verse always comes in. It's a really social event. And, you know, I don't know why, but for whatever reasons, the tea night is like, you know, the checks on there. Or the like everyone feels they don't have to put on a show for themselves. And I think that, um, I really like the night because I feel like when I have to step into my professional role, if I have to step into like it's a place, so like, I'm networking at, then I kind of have to lay it on. Ah, and I like spaces, events, programming where it's like that—that pretense notion doesn't even happen. And I can just show up and I have a really great conversation where I don't have to—I'm not trying to say the right thing, or I don't know I feel like posture or keep out myself into something that I'm not. I'm not, but it's just like a very like intentional version of the ah. So things that are more casual, things that I think are just driven by kind of like that sense of play and like engagement. Like it wouldn't feel like a movie night where it's a wrong kind of sitting quietly. Ah, but I could be to see, but I could be at be see being a panel where it's like someone comes and like a musician comes and the music show is a, "What did you think of the show? What did you think of that?" You know, maybe a book club where it's like, you know, now you're forced on a course, but you are going there to willingly engage and talk about the things that—things that you like, things that are powerful, and be met with people enthusiasm.

Speaker 1 00:23:38,471 So I already in my head, and so, in a moment, insight here. My insight I'm capturing is there's a shift for what people want in an office space. To is from being on, which is like being a posture, you needing converse as a professional self in your background, to wanting to be myself, right? This is not to be myself with the authenticity, not needing to push that earlier figure of the solo preneur. And and people who look for these spaces where they can show up authentically as themselves. Like, when I have my thinking like, "People want a low-effort, low-friction ways to just come and be," right? Socialization is the best thing, you may not actually want even a professional in that work anymore. Where are learning the insights with the non-intrusive way and saying, "Look much like showing up to tea night really allows you show as yourself." "What about a tea night does that really well?" And in trying to get the details. Like a, "What do they do in that I can copy for Industrious, or?" "Right?" "Is it that you don't need the pretense, is it that site about all the self-ing, is it that no one is thus nice and like tea is an easy?" "Like what about—so what about tea nights and other other like non-people, but that's I think"—

Speaker 1 00:24:42,740 You feel your true self as in—

Speaker 1 00:24:44,911 The lack of friction, I mean—

Speaker 2 00:24:46,245 To show up there at the same time I know that the people want to be there. The tea is made. I just walk in. You like anyone. And then like a a a one, and then I just kind of fall naturally into it. Ah, so I think it's just like, "What would stop you from going," I guess, "and registering for an event or a meeting somewhat or meeting those people regularly?" As I could like, you know, the schedule thing of it all. The unlike can not to think for this in the year too like far go for it. Water like, "Where are we doing here?" Ah, ah. And then just it being an event like, "I know that I may not be able to see my friend Catherine like the the week, but I know she'll be at ten on Tuesdays, and then we could, you know, set side that time for each other to meet".

Speaker 1 00:25:33,966 And I go there in a week is to a this at all. I I sympathize, we need to do the heavy lifting for people. They should just people walk up, show up, know how it work, no need to do it again. Like using that, and then back of the programming. So get my descent of what I see like. So it's not social at all. But so, and I am still here. I went again answer around so like a lunch and learns. Like, "You want to learn and see other people's works?" "You want to hear from other professionals in the workspace?" You really know that measure as a dividing bars. They could use the tea that, right? The work to its one. Said, "Tell me, I heard the the tie on the other side, what are the types of programming that Verse has held that you were not interested or that you didn't go to, and why the tension into that office? Tell me a bit some of them at".

Speaker 3 00:26:26,803 That believe you will not have the wit and you can be cold. I mean, I think there is want to to see a very specific like line.

Speaker 2 00:26:36,608 The future of AI is like giving his contact or it's like, "See this like film that like I just not my thing". And not a sin to file like whatever it is that she's trying to like it. Like, "Oh, there's someone that would really hard to drive with this, but that person is not me". Ah, the events that I gravitate towards, I think, are the ones that are the kind of more dialogue base. Like the does not to be the outcome wherein he of this. Like ah, the sex trivia one that I'm thinking about always like, you know, there was a facilitator, "Okay, we're all going to, you know, do this," but then there was an internet part with thinking a thing is it back. And then I to all the pretense, the like seen Chan or ah, creators that we're doing things that were really poor. Like, "Hey, like, ah, I'm going to host a talk," and then, "You know, because I'm an artist or whenever I am, it's these are the things that are going around and my head, what are you best think?" And it she's having with one large group discussion, but that doesn't feel like for in a way that I cause as what I've now heard.

Speaker 1 00:27:38,840 Is a new potential thing I want to dive in. She would just—a community-driven programming, right? Like other creators and artists at Verse who are then creating the events themselves, rather than Industrious top down, "Here's what event we can do". It's actually from there, some of you. There's a really interesting theory, and not this it again with us or you. But I might dive in say like, "Tell me a bit why I for you?" "What would you—what would you have of me would be created for your community?" But that could potentially be insight laid along to it. People value more events from peers versus from building tenant managers. At the back of the mind there, and in a few really wants in before casual social. And your events were in thoughts around maybe a very TED event. Like I connected like a more professional lines or a petite lines. And imagine if they had someone come and talk about your—as as some he means more professional events. Like do not sell me you are not really—

Speaker 2 00:28:38,671 I think you're kind of down to what it is. I think if it was like I think I got you. Not working in the tailored clothes, I need to wear, you don't be on, I'll be on. But in Verse, so sign it. I would be kind of more thus about a bird like as if I like, "Can I show up in like my my fine monkey fit, and do I have to do now kind of, you know," they got a more professional look. And on it, a five years that can go for. Or is it can something where it's like, "You know, the professional be casual this yourselves anyway," you know.

Speaker 1 00:29:06,780 That again. That's like the insight of being authentic. Be authentic. I would to any event that that need to be on because, you know, I—

Speaker 1 00:29:14,704 Want to pose you myself. So—

Speaker 1 00:29:16,734 I I really I—

Speaker 3 00:29:19,218 I am I of from—

Speaker 2 00:29:29,684 Ah, one of the better ship perks of Verse was getting to use space so that you that was her way to store things. So the girl that I hosted the third culture pop-up, she was an influence, but she would also like, "I need a kitchen and I need a place where I put people that cannot be my apartment in Bushwick". Ah, so, so I thought for myself, "Well, I don't." And they also have like, I don't know who are familiar with Peer Space? Peer Space is like an everything space. Do you know a kitchen, a closet that it does like everything, but she has a noise, you like find it, look it. And then I like, you know, after he's gone, Verse is like, "Hey, if you other members of Verse, you have a space to for all events". And I've seen the Verse studio transformed into a whole photo shoot. I've seen it like, you know, truly the musicians. I've seen it like it looked like a hackathon. To a raw girls like people on there, but ah, whatever you need that is by virtue of having a membership Verse gives it.

Speaker 1 00:30:30,731 As you said to see, and why is that important? Why do you like it? Was that important for you when you are considering it? What do you like the idea that that impact the—

Speaker 2 00:30:39,616 I like the idea of it. It was something that like, you know, moving to the city, I didn't realize like, "Oh, while there really isn't need for this," like, "You know, I love hosting an event, I love bringing my friends together". I can't always invite them to my apartment in Bushwick. So I need a space where it's like, you know, we're not all careful, then we can some of the on that.

Speaker 1 00:30:58,396 Yes. This is one of my insights. And having it like how in an office space not just to be a place where you get to exercise of your work self, but allows you to have all aspects of your self to those other that, right? This is the fact like not for something there's a being here around of the species. Does not only people work for people. It offers like a many other aspects of their life. And how can offices that cater to all these other aspects, knowing just like a work, getting stuff done and on your block? How so, for me that in there, I would probably use research and tell a larger story of fright around how people believe to work in it. How they think about it. I'm speaking for my own personal views now. I I am a strong believer of a full your career life have one job for 9 to 5, have you forwarded or things that felt up my identity. And how I relate to work is more like a perma personal. Like this is my job, that is all the other is. So I could tell in my storyline this a larger shift and how people connect to work. And then all these insights around us were looking work and imagine tell, doctor, you're an office space by Depot, right? But the way you go are showing up in the way they are inducing in your space is beyond work. There's a lot of opportunity for you to branch out and support all these other interests of people have. And whether hosting our past or hosting a dinner party, or or sex trivia, that it may be a very interesting benefit where you are perceived and valued more than a off or something. This is all about one participant that thought. I imagine how I have 20 people in the radio, larger game around that. But this is a title like extracting a information. She she never said that we—those are not words she said. But I'm inferring a meaning based on all the evidence of the things that she might value. And I'm putting in perspective why it may not be 100% right. I could ask for a consensus in in theory and she did not correct me. But this is the work of the researcher. It's synthesizing and inferring for much of that.

Speaker 4 00:33:02,916 Now to be that this is dilution the way that will that mean it is. So just why common patterns? Teaching all the members without an interview will have you in on the right. I had everything. It's one of the things that I I have been practicing or number thinking. Is that, ah, if all my questions will be to one and at the end none of them feel the same. You know what? Yes, it's trying to find it.

Speaker 1 00:33:35,112 Yes. Even have a she's a solo or feel a, right? You may do someone a breakfast of that has 500 people. And they have his fan. They don't want to be social. They don't it. They wanted to come in and out and only do—

Speaker 4 00:33:50,876 It as have only one of my pressures because she did mention as she was a COVID kid. I don't think that in that iteration and that the the value more of the socialized in a professional man or a. Right? Yes. And then we the older people at all the millennials when it emerges could say some of them homes are going to find more valuable into gone in to office. And a million filled that could be the medals. Yes. By sensing depending of the demographic, I can make more and more. How do you find that for—

Speaker 1 00:34:23,586 100%. That's the tricky part. So I reattribute a 50 year old real do what that matter. He don't rely say to things like us price. So what do you do that data? Because the Industrious is trying to cater to both of these. So ideally, you're not ever going to find one common need. But you can find the shared thing. One shared thing may be, for instance, the idea of no one wants to be on anymore. They want to come in their suit, they don't want to be the professional self. They want to be more their authentic like show other aspects, more casual, informal. That could be a a larger theme that sits across all demographics. But double picking for June, all annuals may be a number one of the things over who. We may be soon as to you trying to find a common patterns. But if you do find if they had a are different to or just think of the people that were here in to, here's how you can cater to the one.

Speaker 4 00:35:15,650 So at the end, for as what you recommend to be for me, reaching out to different people to be—I have to be cautious about that one ever reaching or she which is spoken in just an I made it—

Speaker 1 00:35:32,012 You made a head of course. Say, or—

Speaker 1 00:35:34,815 So in real life recruitment is very potent. And you remembered, I speak when I showed you the thinking of it is quite so teaching as I for the different profiles. Where they have to be in real life with Industrious. I know that there are five bases, not just Christine, right? As a whole, but of other people. So I would then be trying to segment the solo preneur, small companies, large companies, of different industries, of different tenure with an Industrious. I also a different age and maybe income, right? That different made of presented be in want to mimic what the real life users are going to be like. Not a going to make the scene. So we only give a recommendation space on what will be hard or as often on development. So our client would be much spread, much wider and spread out. And what I—so yes, as well in research, when I recommend or insist recommendations, though I don't generally do like, "Here's how you win, go set," you win, trying to win. I will try to find that common thing that's seen in possibly everyone. And maybe of difference the variety at a strength of how important it is. What is the common needs that I go and has? And that I may say for a different takes that we've identified there, may be it you need me that we want a way that's he with the detail or in my storyline. But generally, you more as you are investing, say, "How do I find different strategies for every face of people?" You want to, how ideally like what strategy that is and touches most people? You don't get the more perfect, but there's something that I don't have a breath on to—

Speaker 2 00:37:07,578 Like the client, I also tell you, "This is what you want". Ah, so that you can explore that. But then you can come back and be like, "I don't—I don't think exploring these two percent is a good use of our time." "I think we should look at this". And they can do and what they want to do that. But something that Caroline talking is like, and always, there's always the section of people that opt out. So who would never be at Industrious?

Speaker 3 00:37:27,592 Those are the—

Speaker 2 00:37:28,107 People that you would want to talk to because it's like that's the market share that they're trying to capture if they could convince them. So always think about who's opting out. This is an event. Like, when it's already hard recording the people that say no, it's even a harder. Like I was working on a project like, "How can I identify in a second people that said no," for, you know, I mean—

Speaker 1 00:37:47,248 Ah, you could also take people who like Industrious, who turned and it may not be their decision. Because then it makes it a person of an early like, "Why did you leave The Verse?" And in another a way. But for people who are—they work, why did they choose WeWork over Industrious? And that's much harder recruitment sending. That is not for this project. But if you were doing it like, how to think in this way.

Speaker 2 00:38:09,389 If you could take of the archetype of a personal out down and then try to find that archetype.

Speaker 1 00:38:15,815 So then back to programming, said to some port. And something I remember Brenda saying is, you know, is that free food always wins. I, you know, but it is really be so why? She also said, "What not everyone wants to connect with Industrious in a social way?" "Why there are the people I want to come in and come out?" And she said to me like, "What are the other non-social events down that people might want to like not feel drawn?" Yes. Where at my mind.

Speaker 3 00:38:41,060 No, and also about like, "How can we bring the same level of convenience to those people that would out now with," just beyond the others.

Speaker 1 00:38:48,083 Yes, right. So we know she's leaning heavy on full social, which is gracious. But of that, so if I spoke at that to you or I may get a more around amenities, et cetera. But it's all because I have her. I want to ask her about the non-social that since I had a lot of her the social events. I'm curious and I might so away. It might be that some talking with someone else, who said, "They don't really want to go to the office to socialize, and they have their own to profound the field them". For socialize is really rich now. In your opinion, a lot to do to don't want to come only for an interesting, but not work really inactive, not a musing. I said, "I think for her to respond to it, I say what ever thought so lately around a events that are more professional and focused around learning and or hearing from an expert speak of it?" I will tell me that how you must long like—

Speaker 2 00:39:37,291 I think if it felt like it defined curiosity in any way. The performance at all the topics. When the saying or the person is interesting, I'll probably go because I'm just someone that will lean into that curiosity very naturally. It's like I seek community, I've recommended a thing in being in. So it's like if I go to a boring talk with the boring talk, ah. But I—

Speaker 3 00:39:58,478 I think the idea of—

Speaker 2 00:40:00,535 I recently went to a—I did a tour of the new Google office in New York. And they have a oh, fully store retail version. Like have a coffee shop and the Google is come. And it's like, "All, I have a meeting." It's like, "All, just come to the office." And then they can go. And they have at the whole coffee shop. So I think it's like, I would love to have that. I would love for Verse to do that because it would want a that third space for me to meet someone in a professional context that isn't a coffee shop, but there is a place that I engage. Like I know where everything is. It's a place that I've been. And it's like I can like, "It's my home turf in a way". It was an a comfort full. Sometimes when you go to a coffee shop, the cafe in this place, "I have never been here, I don't know what to expect, or I don't know if I can take a meeting in here, I don't know people will appreciate me talking in this context in this way". Sort of all these other people. I don't worry about that at Verse. Yes.

Speaker 1 00:40:53,153 I here is so interesting that what she just said. Which he likes another a space within the office that at Google that she feels is her little church. That she's comfortable in. That she can bring others before in. That's not the actual office or an an intermediary between the Google space into the house. And I—I thought Industrious do not write in like a median space that you host other people feel in your turf. It's not Industrious a grand a plate, a more neutral space, I must relate in the same. And this lot.

Speaker 1 00:41:35,821 And I think this is a gift too. There is traditional a lot in this programming. But what event should maybe be doing? So now we need to turn around services and amenities. Like, "How well you're looking for an office?" So she mentioned the Google's canvas. Make a concrete example she as thinks she can pull for it. As is a good as they. I compared Verse. I say like, "And you mentioned of the campuses that you love, tell me more about the Google campus?" "Like what did you like about it?" "Would you ever want to work, not work at Google, but work in a place in what's designed to Google, but stood out to you for a tract with you?" "What like made you want to come on to all"?

Speaker 1 00:42:09,234 Yeah, the coffee shop one. But—

Speaker 2 00:42:12,171 Then each floor also had a kitchen. And it's like the state of the art, in my opinion, professional shops. But then they also have like cooking classes. So that you can go to your job at Google is like, "Hey, like someone from Faraon Penton, let's go to, you know, the sixth floor and all my booth." You can, "You know, cook together and it's like—it's a facility to things." I'm not eating my own lunch. But I can, "You know, still go at someone, we have the boy, and making a meal and show you go together and making it that's work". Ah, I think those are a the compelling. I think I just the variety of spaces. Like I don't know where you asked, post up on the half years now on the. Like I personally I always prefer to work in this table. I know some people don't mind, you know, sitting on the cushion for 30 minutes. All that it has every iteration between from a desks that are pods to like, you know, full blown time on the domes, too, you know, lounge chairs. Or if you've never seen those like called the conversation in you look like a Joseph. That they had everything. So every kind of work which you could do, or like the more way you could engage someone. What—

Speaker 1 00:43:15,596 Available you to a T for it. The plaster on that's a this industry. My visit the cause of my ability. But rather than stopping here because you could tell that they really value a modular and unique ways to enable alternative. Or it's really to dig away. I want to know why. Why is that important you as to be able to have some in a configuration, but why do you need that, a no?

Speaker 2 00:43:41,395 For me personally, I love working on my stomach. Like I'm that person. I play on my comfortable position. The option to do that, I think, it's really really nice. And I also need to like access in a work on my laptop and none of the desperate people. Ah, and then the same thing was in from here in labor. But someone is just like any less great. One of these rooms felt the right for to feel versus like, "Hey, let's go to the coffee shop down stairs," and they wish us have the that. And the, ah, so, oh, yes, those are all there. And and then they can we know that friend. I—

Speaker 1 00:44:13,963 Mentions around the service, the convenient factor. I bring on his tailor as a bat in the back of my heart, my mind. And yet has that and I need to get her feedback on us. And I don't over us at that in by. I might connect to Google say, "Oh, well, then every Google has a a long, great, perfect." And now they offer free mass massages. And because of what other people had a tailor. We you bring your clothes in and at that like tailors. But they were the or small for free. I don't know. And what I—so like, "What are you putting me by that?" "And are there any other types of liking me just after about would be an hastening to you as other"—

Speaker 1 00:44:47,203 "How much love as he"—

Speaker 2 00:44:48,599 Personally, ah, I don't know how popular, though. But my can that be also ah, several a little attic on a with my lost. Ah, I think a service pet care or like having like a cat from the space. And you have a pet in offices and they can bring it. Also much that also on to the a and then—

Speaker 3 00:45:06,605 She knows be working either the straight or how, no.

Speaker 1 00:45:12,909 Then you might ask her about this one question here. "Beyond having the tailoring and pet friendly, what else would wish us opposite by the services or insurance?" Many mutual median factors. "What would be that your dream when to move to"—

Speaker 4 00:45:25,665 Have—

Speaker 3 00:45:36,855 No, I feel—

Speaker 1 00:45:48,905 Like you might not know. I may have had a close in the back of my head. I I thought I was still an eligible person. Is a personal creator that you could book every week for a massage or things you get her a month. Says, "And yet, no". And I will often say, "Or not really, I cannot add so much, you can cut out." I like what you for having. So said he wouldn't do that, but—

Speaker 2 00:46:14,168 I would do like a place you can take naps. That I always would love. Like I like—I have like my little handed to grow on and put out and show yet. Oh, I would love for a place to have like an OK, like that nap time place. I think you would also as a that time code. Yes. A place on nothing is up. Ah, but just like, I think as we've all had those days where it's like, "Oh my God, I could just sleep like 30 minutes, I will come back to life," and I that like actually finished it. Ah, that would be really really nice. Ah, I think a gym is aspirational with regular, um.

Speaker 3 00:46:47,481 Ah, but it would be nice to have. I think it would be—

Speaker 2 00:46:56,444 A a a shortly having a personal assistant. I would love to have someone follow you on the office.

Speaker 3 00:47:02,292 And one like, "I would I have going on Tuesdays". Like this. It's like, "What else?" But that's not I be very for I then.

Speaker 1 00:47:19,078 And then I say, "And there is a you person looking books of the part time for all, but it possibly," which I almost first Angus hybrid. What a—

Speaker 2 00:47:31,247 Why I was a in person hybrid. And I think that the work that I do is best done with face-to-face engagement. You can always do it virtually, as but as. She's like, "I I also forgive my dirty front people." So I guess that I give myself the comfort on being like, you know, "Oh, maybe I don't want to go in office if I feel you or". And like, "You know, if I'm safe and like you to do work from home, I don't that little coffee off." But for me like, "I will prefer work in person". And I think places where ah that flat horizontal work structure is like a scene an office. So I am then if I am the university where it's like I don't—Google has offices. I don't think like the head or a direction of whenever. And like, "No, like everyone just has been on a little table that they could air these is us." Everyone has access to everything and they can go anywhere when every one. Ah, I don't know about that for say a reality. But like ah, office spaces that are on like, it's just like, you know, rows of computers and a everyone else like like not ah to these. Said that I could choose a workplace that doesn't don't have it. I probably the one that is in so take later and I thank you.

Speaker 1 00:48:41,209 I here and all to come in two times on the left a mandate. What would excite you about that? What space design or amenities or services offer that would might make you want that one?

Speaker 1 00:48:53,958 So I may get an insight pretty good. And copy is that having a really full programming that is to be yourself is out around the tailor coming—

Speaker 2 00:49:01,587 In on a Saturday. What would we do, want to coming one? Definitely the free coffee. I love free treat. Ah, so I will be there if it's there. Ah, and I also think that if there was like, you know, not a happy hour afterward. As I not—I don't want to go to happy hour. I want the thing that is like the same kind of like a bat or like a people for work will be there but like you don't have to say—

Speaker 1 00:49:29,095 So tell me more about that. Tell me how I have other—

Speaker 2 00:49:33,345 I feel like it's somewhat a speaking really candidly. Be like you can't get sloppy drunk at a happy hour.

Speaker 3 00:49:39,323 That's really embarrassing and real. Like that's not—

Speaker 2 00:49:45,103 That's not the goal of happy hour. It's to facilitate. But you're caught in this weird in-between thing of like, "I'm talking to your CEO with like my boss". So that's time or so. If there's a way that it's still that same point of like a casual event, but I'm not like being consciously like the work hierarchy that I may interest as for the people around me, I think that very ah, I don't know. Other amenities: open in this that I I don't have any more places that you have to be here at this time. Where if you have to do the thing, kind of like a free reign over the space and how you want to use it. Ah, there isn't a counterculture of people saying, "I can't use it". Or that I mean you feel in a long time.

Speaker 1 00:50:31,800 That we so. So that again, don't that that that can connect to water for would mandate you come in anytime and you come in 9 to 5, right? So that's something Industrious would do. So of the people part out of what you say and what Industrious control. Industrious couldn't control that you open space. So all the different rooms is ready if you don't offer off to certain people certain times. But being personal share with all that Industrious have the all.

Speaker 3 00:50:57,534 Also, maybe Industrious be like share that on their tenant. Like and maybe it'll be more like a to more like a higher level team.

Speaker 1 00:51:04,977 Yes. We've heard this that so. Yes, an I all questions for us thinking about your own discussion guide question. Anything that you feel capture—

Speaker 3 00:51:26,794 On a place we should pivot, have a sense in mind of it. I realized that you were talking a lot about how your friends influence you like coming into Verse. And so think about like, "What are not to get the membership?" So you want to ask more about like, "How that isn't like the friends or your community, you're already in a friend in your forethought in all the sense".

Speaker 1 00:51:51,274 Or I don't know that is so. "How did your own community it was that I don't so much so you want to be in is what from this is a astonishing production?" "How important your world stars?" "How do you come in and are the winning in a way?" "Is it more like how did your friends talk about Verse, have this is your time having a membership at Verse that Verse or Verse of another coworking space impact to you and how you think about where you want to work tell it at that time?" "Ah, I think the similarity between me and my friends like the nature work that"—

Speaker 2 00:52:26,721 We do and hearing what they get out of the space. But they were in the space at the time. Ah, it was really to be positive. It was like, "I needed that third space to be created, but then to also work, but then also not to work for". Ah, it was really important and aligned with me really well. And then I think just knowing that like those like like-minded people is too important. Like other people are going to show up and engage in the same way, I think, is a kind of how that would influence—

Speaker 1 00:52:52,813 Me. "Now you have to go in there in your friend that you were at"—

Speaker 1 00:52:56,780 "Notes, would you go with that, so"—

Speaker 1 00:52:59,109 Say it—

Speaker 2 00:53:00,175 Would depend a lot on, I guess, the people that are still there. Ah, because I've met people that Louise. And why I was at all—why I could actually call the from Verse was because of them. But my friends that have Verse membership were there. I had a great time. And the five other people that was like, "Oh my God, those three." But they changed members sometimes. So you, but I gently—

Speaker 1 00:53:19,679 To the train of thought though, and that's a lot about of course all. "How do I will stay in"—

Speaker 3 00:53:28,339 "You, oh, did you interact with the staff working there on a daily basis that they then"—

Speaker 2 00:53:35,143 Not really. It wasn't more just—it was. But I think like also the founders of Verse were also like—like they were like themselves numbers. Like one guy was the CEO and then someone else was creative. So that they were also like in the space. And so it's like their work the silos of it. And people knew them, you would see them around. But they were, um—

Speaker 3 00:53:55,497 And we use the term like, to yes. You feel like we've interacted. But there was a picture of it. In so yes. Everything will seem less yet. Like by—

Speaker 2 00:54:06,187 The events are we used the kitchen. I should note in the kitchen and everything would be there, everything would be clean. And then when I was done, I knew where to put everything in that dishwasher. So that like—like the next day it could be fine. When I wanted to karaoke at Verse, I know where the karaoke mikes are. I'm going to over there and I'm going to plug it in, dogs, and something. Ah, but like I know where that some is because it is like, what is also my space? Where it's an expense at your house that you know where everything is. Ah, you know, go and you were in it back. So—

Speaker 1 00:54:33,064 I don't know, I—you loving. I do note that was like that's also really interesting, though. The fluency of the space and feeling like, "You know, we can operate it in one". And your own again thinking like an Operations perspective. Like Nations to do a much better onboarding. Like walking through the rooms, how to engage, or let you feel like your on your own turf. Now on with the dusted for later on that. "And what would you call like—remember me, another a way to call what"—

Speaker 1 00:55:00,438 "I mean, I you describe what I"—

Speaker 2 00:55:02,567 A oh, I could say a third space. I would say a third space. If I had taking off the table, I would say like a—

Speaker 3 00:55:14,759 The finalizing of it space. A place that you can go to—

Speaker 2 00:55:24,579 Connect and engage with people. Something in like that really is like what it is, but like in like a in not in like a pretense way. You go to a library, your apartment. There's a free kind of satellite. You're going to engage with that area. Ah, I feel like not like I come to shop the bars. I like the one more like that. Something I think our generation will—

Speaker 3 00:55:42,583 Not be doing.

Speaker 2 00:55:43,621 But if you go to a a place that is like a Verse, that is where it's like, "I wonder who I might meet today?" "I hope that I did have a good conversation." "I hope that I talked to someone that I went to the new". Ah, that's the kind of the mentality that I walk very with in. Um.

Speaker 1 00:55:59,270 It and I like her expectation of her seed when it's going to provide is like the community at the root. So and I like the full third space, which he did. "I'm collecting, I might go say, 'Why not call it Industrious, why'"—

Speaker 1 00:56:14,922 "Isn't it to the past year"—

Speaker 1 00:56:17,000 "Ah, Verse"—

Speaker 2 00:56:18,198 Is always a conversion space. If it's always an option. I think more like, "I can always go into that one area, I know where it's a very very quiet and I can do work away". Ah, and I've done that before. There are days where it's like, "Oh, crap, I we have a 3-hour internal meeting." "I need to lock in, get this done, and then go to my other thing". That's the days I think the cold universe. But if I'm showing up in the in the evening or like, you know, even on a weekend like, "That's when I'm coming to, you know, that the it's a a"—

Speaker 1 00:56:45,941 A so I think again a super interesting. But what—what is this is retrieving for? Not just does call it the cold at the root. So and the one in. But a particular background and work style. Like, but already in my synthesis, I can see a fly like the future of coworking spaces is like to looking to coworking plus. That plus is all about a non-work related productivity, professional building of being in scripting all the other interests you have in that. That being a facilitator of that. And there's a gain so many opportunities around at. I was like, so I'm thinking I had we called the story to Industrious in a very clear way. I don't want to tell that a like, "We're not for this." "She liked this place, Verse is really cool because they do this extreme event," and try to write thus facts. You're telling a coffee place or testing that to Industrious. That's junior level research. You need to abstract when love and say and, "What we're seeing across the multiple parties is the world coworking spaces of growing and evolving to just beyond work." To whether an a term or coworking plus. "Here's how other born being with that there used to get to pursue a a creative endeavors like karaoke or processing." "They are looking at it as a place to host and bring people into the space." Right? So you just come to work there. When you bring other people to bear not work a ship. And people can it and copy to come here. You're facilitating a connections outside of the workspace. That is a sophisticated law way reading the the light. And she didn't say those things. And we need to do that in this—in this is hire. But again, one thing what we're avoiding is a copy-paste what the participant is saying. We want the evidence where you want her clothes to her stories. But our headers that should never just feel like there's Verse in this a lot. To call like and and I tell you because I I did this when I was early in my career. I I'm the voice of the user. I just—I didn't do I want to make sure you hear everything. But we need to be a a journalist and interpret the data and give meaning to the data. Right? So what about Verse? Where about we were together? I make it or to say. And that's the hard part of synthesis. That's what you asked, talked about opening for a. That's what we need to be strengthening our muscle in. And—

Speaker 3 00:59:04,388 But to the friends that are like—like, "I have the semblance of a kind," I want to say that. "I don't have to say it". That's your intuition. That's the thing that—

Speaker 2 00:59:12,696 Gives you the ability to abstract. So your ability to do this in the in such interviews will come or go. But I think that the ability to get your space that kind of like a thing. I can take a fumble around and try to articulate what I'm saying. I'm going to try to get out like that. It may not go the way you want. But she started, if it goes really well, that's things said that you're looking for it because that's intuitive to you. But that's also a probably like the answer in some ways. You're performing like the insight that's emerging is that thing that is like, "I'm trying to particularly just what I can". That's petition is—

Speaker 1 00:59:47,824 Yet. You're not looking a stall in the team. "You have a great, you're working people like you, help before you it is for"—

Speaker 2 00:59:53,300 Said, "Yes, yes." "If you don't go in and your friend does it, all you think it's said some"—

Speaker 1 00:59:59,314 Any find of fashions where a consumed—

Speaker 2 01:00:05,049 I do not. This was a helpful. But when I was looking at it, there was like another—it was like a weird membership system. But like those people that that eat one conference room once and I'll do that. And then those three people were like, "I'm right on the whole," so as to be in my membership office. So I think some kind of conversation around people's different use cases and the why is. And then getting the people where it's like, "How do I get the solo people that come here like once a month for a meeting, how do I get them and make this first week?" "How would I get people to, ah"—

Speaker 1 01:00:36,102 "How you"—

Speaker 2 01:00:37,886 Yes, yes. And then like just different like. But the—the different kind of the segments of the people were using Industrious seemed a very—they're very different, very different use cases. I feel like doubling down, double putting out what those are, it would be a good insight for why people are picking the users and of things as—

Speaker 1 01:00:59,415 A research about perfect interview, but just about being a more divine research at all.

Speaker 1 01:01:15,180 Think anyone can do a research. Yes, yes.

Speaker 2 01:01:18,925 She, but a design started before the whole. To foster start before you even walk in the room. You as a designer are facilitating not just like the actual like organizing questions. That it's the—it's the female from the brief. And it's from the ending. When you get there and everyone has these like little gold nuggets that they don't even realize they're there. And your job as designer is trying to pull out those insights and then turn it on something else. That's something else. This is your job. But also creating the way that way is also a part of your job. So he said that you can make people so comfortable to the extent that you can situate people in a place where it's like, "I can answer these questions," is very important. Because in this mock interview, one, I'm hearing the side comments. And then I'm also thinking of my co, "How could I, you know, give answers that help to them"? But people you are intervening are not only doing that. And some people that you're doing will be terrible in the sense they will give you actually nothing. You'll end—you'll ask the the question, they'll be like, "Oh, it's like this". And you have to be able to continue the conversation. And that's when you're like a case of your friend or if someone you know or what—"Why didn't you do something," whatever it is. Ah, my advice to you all is just being mindful that it starts—it's the whole process. And to the extent that you can facilitate that process, ah, is is right. And there's—you're going to make mistakes and that will be a very opera. I do that. But it will hone your intuition. So that the next time it may happen, you'll be able to facilitate them very seamlessly. Ah, but it just alters your experience. And the best way for you to get good at it is just try and accepting that being wrong is too important to process. It sounds very coating, but I I swear it—

Speaker 1 01:03:03,938 Works. I yes, that's a good point you. But our researcher is not just at the part of it. Having presence in the whole journey and process and in it.

Speaker 2 01:03:13,536 Of that. Yes. And I well. And also, Carolyn has my ah content information. If any go in a chat and coffee, I be down. And I have a business cards. Go one of those. Oh, they're from WeWork though. They're not like, you don't I. Yes, my number—

Speaker 1 01:03:35,876 Is an I got 12 o'clock. And then we'll—

Speaker 3 01:03:38,706 I can a gander says I. Is this so how room he came about? That tremble with that was so to the that's and what then your magic is designed. Going to have a pink one with the former and enjoyed it out. How—

Speaker 4 01:04:17,337 You and I so—

Speaker 2 01:04:32,018 So these are old. But the number you know, we're all the same. Ah, so yes. I saw her on the right track for—

01:04:45,126 Just—

Speaker 3 01:04:51,055 Yes, connect on LinkedIn and Instagram. As—

Speaker 2 01:04:55,932 Totally happy to do. Carolyn, thank you for inviting this.

Speaker 1 01:05:00,106 So I'm actually curious about Verse now. Yes.

Speaker 2 01:05:08,162 It was on a sliding scale which I also like, you. But like when it was in the town in scale. And that I think since they got a new building in a higher value place—

Speaker 3 01:05:20,415 The more expensive so.

Speaker 2 01:05:27,337 Actually I bought it on a new—

Speaker 3 01:05:33,102 He had to ship candy. You on one of your. Oh, yes. I I'm not sure this is. This was a gift from a friend of a friend. But someone would be able to. I think that's a 25. And then it itself shut out. If it's all yet. It is a half—

Speaker 1 01:06:00,827 One—

Speaker 3 01:06:03,317 Thank you. This will be—

Speaker 2 01:06:05,219 So yes. This was a birthday gift. And my friends are all in the film. I I I I am just getting into it. But it's it's really it's—

Speaker 3 01:06:20,978 Wait until. Yes, yes. Her enjoy and I—

Speaker 2 01:06:26,209 Like I wanted something. Like I have my friends to have like, you know, whatever I can. Spectacle, whatever. No, I—that's very too much pressure. I'm so nervous. I'm so such a destructive person. Like on the person thing. Or rolling my photo in life. Ah, anywhere around everywhere. So I don't need expensive technology. I break.

Speaker 3 01:06:43,210 Oh, then that's as I. So yes. Going at the—

Speaker 2 01:06:49,987 Most nice being. You guys good luck with your project.

Speaker 3 01:06:53,534 On—

Speaker 2 01:06:55,912 And just—just I have saying: be curious to your intuition. But like seriously, that's what's got me this far. It's like, you know, you can read on you, whatever. But like just going with your gut. It works out. It does now.

Speaker 3 01:07:16,163 And long. Yes, why—why are you wearing this? Is I—

Speaker 1 01:07:22,663 Do as all we—

Speaker 3 01:07:27,884 Want a war a. You can the of the medium versus young light version. And apparently the heavy version, right, is so hot that I only recommend in like really quiet. Oh, yes. Because if you're inside, your need a cooling. Yes, you mean that you're—

Speaker 1 01:07:46,483 Too. And great.

Speaker 4 01:07:49,005 Yes.

Speaker 3 01:07:51,391 I wear or not. They also have all. Every one is, "If you be, 'Oh, this is to you a sister you unique junior,' and we should invest in it." Money is no one. So there I, ah. Said, "I I can go"—

Speaker 1 01:08:28,713 Back. Yes.

Speaker 3 01:08:38,466 I is the one is what the theory sees. I next how I think—

Speaker 1 01:08:44,112 I'll try to have a hold.

Interview #1 Jasia_Kubik

Greeting

Hi Jasia Kubik, this is Feifey, Sophie, Seren, from SVA.

Thanks for joining!

Do you still have about 30 minutes available for our conversation today?

[If yes → continue]

[If no → Can you reschedule? If no → Thank you anyway, we'll end here.]

Outline Purpose and Ask Permission

Today we want to talk to you about your experience with coworking spaces. [brief pause]

We're partnering with Industrious to understand what people need from shared workspaces.

Everything you share will be anonymous and only used for this research study.

You'll receive a $15 Amazon gift card afterward.

With your permission, I'd like to record this session, only for use in this study. Is that okay?

[If yes → continue]

[If no → dismiss, no incentive]

Participant Setup

Before I ask you some background questions, I want to remind you that there are no right or wrong answers - just be yourself and share your honest thoughts.

We don't work for Industrious, We're just collecting feedback for our research.

Please be honest with both positive and negative thoughts. Nothing you say will hurt my feelings.

I will now begin recording the session.

A. Icebreaker (10min)

1. Can you briefly introduce yourself?

- a. What do you do, what is your job title, and how long have you been with your company?
- b. Do you usually work in-person, remote, hybrid? How often do you get into the office?
- c. In a typical week, how many days do you come to this space? Are those dates mandatory that you come in or you choose to come in? What makes you want to come in?
- d. [If hybrid] On other days, where do you work? Why do you work here instead of your office/co-working space?
- e. What factors do you weigh when you're deciding where to work that day?
- f. Can you share a recent example of choosing to come in, and what influenced that choice?

Remote.

Willingness -> live a little bit far away. -> more comfortable.

No separation between workspace,

2. Walk me through what you did here yesterday (or your last visit).

- a. Where did you work?
- b. What did you do?

2 weeks ago, went into work, in person meeting with Boss.

Finish the work, there. It was fine.

Free coffee into the kitchen. -> Compelled? -> Mostly boss need to come in for something. -> a lot going on. -> greater separation.

15 minutes walk away from the classes. I have evening classes, end up in class building.

Community being built in the office, my friend work in different departments.

Home life and work life.?

Why is that important to you?

3. Did you talk or collaborate with anyone while you were here? How did that usually happen?
 - a. Did you participate in any work events or activities?
 - b. What influences your choice of where to sit or work?

B. Community Engagement (10 min)

Community:

During summer -> free breakfast.

Holiday party -> gonna make a point, love the free food,

Why is that important???

Food is very expensive, cost time and money, no food -> stay home.

Both people and food, if no food, will grab bagel.

1. Can you describe a time when you participated in a community activity and felt comfortable and engaged?
 - a. What kind of activities or events would make you want to join? Why?
 - b. Have community events or people here ever influenced your decision to come?
 - i. Can you tell me about a time that happened?
2. Tell me about a time when you felt uncomfortable or disengaged in this space or during a community activity.

The working space is so empty, a lot of people work alone, will come to the office.

Food are all expired. -> annoying.

Amenity:

1. Kitchen: HR buy the coffee pot, don't know how they keep it.
 2. No other amenity besides that.
 3. Free swag? In the office, mug.
 4. Snacks: from other events, is event running in school? What kind of event?
 - a. Student event. HR runs student program. -> she collect all of that.
 - b. Couldn't choose the snacks -> How do you feel about that.
3. What does "belonging" mean to you in a workspace?
 - a. Tell me more about that.

Nice to see people there sometimes, just having the community.

Whole working space: 9 floors in the building. 4 are offices.

Events: Does it held there?

4. Can you describe a moment when you really noticed or felt the community atmosphere here?
 - a. What was the event? What happened?

C. Workspace & Amenity Usage (10 min)

1. Can you tell me about the amenities that you have in the working space?

My department on is pretty small, four seats in the office.

2. Can you tell me about a recent time when the space or amenities helped you get your work done particularly well?

- a. What was happening at that moment?
- b. What about the space or amenities made things easier or better for you?

Work <-> Life

Came to Campus earlier, know we can make free coffee there, I drink a lot of coffee, keeps me there. Looking forward to see friends. Other spaces could work in. had work there few times, really like general social.

Lighting. -> nice to see people coming and going.

Desk is much like indicating -> this is more professional, more comfortable chair. -> more relax environment.

Real food >> quality good one.

3. When you think about your workday here, which amenities or features matter most to you?

- a. What makes those particular things important for you?
- b. If one of them changed or went away, how, if at all, would that influence your experience or decision to keep using this space?

4. What makes this specific space feel "worth coming to," if it does?

- a. How do the space, people, or atmosphere contribute to that feeling?
- b. How might you describe that to a friend who's never been here?

5. Is there anything that feels missing or that could better support the way you work here?

- a. Tell me more about how that affects your experience now.
- b. What would be different for you if that were improved?

Nice to have more community in the office. More social event. My team is small, me and my boss. In person event. Text to friends in the moment, go chat, a break in my day. -> seeing friendly faces.

6. Have you seen anything in other offices or coworking spaces that you wish existed here?

- a. What was it, and what about it worked well there?
- b. How do you imagine it might affect your experience if it were available here?

Happy hour could be fun.

Because of the coworking space, table set-up like rectangle, could talk among each other, show up, good way, look forward, because. Personal life - extends to working -> collaborating with people. Boost around, enjoying relationships.

D. What makes people stay/leave - Retention (10 min)

1. Can you recall a time when you thought about leaving the space?
 - a. What made you feel that way?
2. Can you tell me about a time when something in the space wasn't available or didn't work the way you expected?
 - a. What was the situation, and what didn't work or was missing?
 - b. How did that affect your work or your day?

Technical computer, sign in my credential. No one try to access this computer.
Person who know. -> not consistently -> permanent work remotely.

3. Were there any obstacles that made it hard for you to feel engaged or connected?
(e.g., scheduling, social dynamics, the environment)

Not knowing who will be there. Hesitated. -> if you can be able to help today? Email it back and forth. (Supportive to fix thing.) The person said they. - who I should asking. (inner communication tool.

Who! What! Would be there. Primary way is through email.

4. If you had the chance to change something about the space, what would you consider changing?
5. On the flip side, what experiences or features of the space made you want to stay?
 - a. What kept you coming back?
 - b. Free coffee and good computer chair, comfortable. -> I like the lower floor, like unstructure, low and clear, no barriers, no hustle, -> feel professional. -> socializing
My office is like smaller room, like wall.

6. What is your ideal working environment?

Don't have a coworking space in the floor. She might just take it at a desk. My impression is that a lot of people.

E. Wrap-Up (3 min)

1. Is there any experience or story you think is important for understanding your office experience that we haven't discussed yet?

Can you share your preferred e-mail so I can process the Amazon $15 gift card.
You should receive this in the next week or so but if you don't feel free to follow-up with
chou4@sva.edu

Feifey's Note:

Making sure to paybill, wire transfer, and reporting

Like working home more -> not distracted bc if someone else need something, more challenging for other people to just walk up and ask

Getting back to office, and to push everyone back to the office

Working with other:

Before- people have their cubical

Now- more open and undefine

- Doors not shut
- Letting people more easy to distract from work
- Having people do online meeting (doors unshut its distracting -sound- especially having a bad mood)
- White space and open desk
- Oval shape
- High table no electrical outlet (not allow to eat)
 - For people just to meet
- Sitting along the wall with window
- Kitchen

Dealing with mood of coworker

- Dunno how to work with and approach when there is work need to be done

Goods:

- easy to ask and get to with your co-worker
- distracting but when u need things is very easy to get
- being able to see what others is doing
 - increase interaction with

Cooperating with people in space:

- working from home in friday
 - her moody co-worker
 - communication problem with her coworker
 - having different goal
 - difficult to find some people on friday - not responsive

Working with property accountant

- Good team
 - Easy people to work with
 - People who care about the work

Event - they used to have before the leadership change

- Downing size a lot
- Used to have company culture
- Sharing flower
- Going to show tgt
- Having drinks with each other

Used to have(pre-covid)

- Annual christmas event
- Other department people will join
- Announcement of some one getting pregnant/marry
- Outing tgt

Now:

- Smth team run that by them selves
- Feeling being labor by the new leadership
- Not being appreciate work spread among people
 - More loyalty to the company and people
 - Going above and beyond
 - Some value that money can not buy
- No personal touch

Company events are not needed:

- Just showing appreciation
- It is always a plus to showing a pair to care

Kindness and respect is what keeps people connected right now.

Last event

- Coworker leaving
- Drinks after work
- A lot of people come
- People pairing off
- People starting to drink and showing their other side, she felt like other people are pretending to be another person, which she doesn't like
- She rather go to the bar with people she is more closer with

Amenity:

- A floor of the Building
 - Gym
 - Golf simulator
 - Roof cafeteria
 - Roof working space
 - Different size conference floor
 - Library with books you can borrow
 - Co-working space
 - Beehive keeping bees
 - Getting free honeys
 - They keep bees but the bees on the rooftop are not the bees they own
 - Those bees are stoping her to go
 - Plant growing space
 - They have an app in for the whole building
 - Staff (usually stays in the cafeteria) will talk with the worker
- App

- How people get in the building
 - Don't hv to unlock the phone
- Meals
- Event one or twice a week - Nice having variety
 - Sometimes having parties on the rooftops
 - Mini farmers market (local farmer)
 - Getting free groceries
 - Free food
 - A lot of people show up and ran out of the food
 - Japanese stitching class (1hr)
 - Less than 10 people
 - Considering base on the event type - crafty
 - Spicy making class
 - Silence reading class
 - Arts and crafts
 - Pastry - made in new york

Working things not expected

- Elevator
 - Pressing it it doesn't work
 - Not reflecting the machine
 - Three elevators but
 - Pressing floor then go to the floor
 - Annoying
 - The temperature
 - Cold in winter
 - And hot in summer
- Sometime they held events but the cafeteria and rooftop which are not able to access

Ideal working environment:

- working from the beach
 - Beach person just looking at it
 - Can just stare at it
 - She tried before but it might be a little distracting
 - It feeds the soul

It is not for everyone, and it is hard to fit everyone in the same box. Be mindful of paying attention to the individual. Being able to recognise people with their own strength.

Interview #3 Esme

問候

說明目的並取得錄音同意

今天我們想和你聊聊你使用共享工作空間（coworking spaces）的經驗。

我們目前是在為 Industrious 合作進行客戶專案，想了解人們對共享工作空間的需求。你分享的所有內容都會保持匿名，僅用於此次研究。

受訪結束後，你將會收到一張 15 美元的 Amazon 禮品卡。

在開始之前，我想徵求你的同意：

我們希望錄音這段訪談，僅會用於本次研究分析。可以嗎？

參與者準備階段

我們並不代表 Industrious，我們只是協助進行研究並收集回饋。

請放心分享，包括正面與負面的意見，都沒有問題，也不會影響到任何人——我完全不會介意。

現在我要開始錄音了。

Interview Guide – English Translation

Greeting / Purpose / Recording Consent

Hello!

Today we'd like to talk with you about your experience using coworking spaces.

We're currently collaborating with Industrious on a client project to better understand what people need from shared workspaces. Everything you share will remain anonymous and will only be used for this research.

After the interview, you'll receive a $15 Amazon gift card.

Before we begin, I'd like to ask for your permission:

We would like to record this interview for research analysis only.

Is that okay?

A. Introduction

Tell us a bit about yourself and your previous work at Global Innovation Business Center.

- Your role: secretary, customer success specialist
- Tasks: client inquiries → contracts → service fulfillment
- Renting physical offices, business address registration
- Handling parent-company addresses
- What were your main responsibilities?

Tell us about the company.

- Space size and structure
 - Two floors, about 270 ping
 - Small rooms: 10–20 units
 - Large rooms: fewer than 10
 - Meeting spaces
- Pricing
 - Facing Songshan Airport, Minquan East Road
 - $9–10k per ping
 - 10+ people rooms: NT$100k+
 - Contracts from 1 to 5 years
 - Smallest: 3 ping (startups), ~NT$25k
 - Largest: 14–15 ping, NT$180–200k

Client types and scale

- Both large and small companies
- Examples:
 - Insurance center (government-like)
 - Architecture firm (combined 3 rooms)
 - French company – energy (lubricants)
 - Leopard Energy subsidiary
 - US company – legal
- Common traits: strong capital (space is expensive)
- Rare individual clients—usually people who temporarily need a private office

Walk us through a typical day or week.

- Most demanding part: emotional labor
- Differences between floors:
 - 7F: quiet, less chatty → work finishes faster
 - 8F: more chatty → harder to finish tasks
- Typical complaints
 - Trash not taken out
 - Intern issues: errands, fridge cleaning, mail timing, “Can a microwave heat red wine?” container issues, sewing kit...
- Business center value = space + admin support + cleaning

What are the goals or KPIs of the customer success role?

- How do you usually achieve your targets?

B. Communication & Client Needs

Walk us through your full client acquisition process.

- Lead sources: JSimple (form submission) or organic search (more common)
- Info collected: team size, budget, move-in date, private or shared space, window or not
- Gather inquiry details (foreign/Taiwanese companies)
- Quote → tour → contract → negotiation

What do clients most often ask about?

- Space layout: want it restored to original
 - Internet: complicated due to different security needs; some need their own firewall; no official spec-standard server room
 - Challenges:
 - Soundproofing quality (you installed acoustic foam)
 - Meeting room usage limits (free hours)
 - What strategies have you tried to address these challenges? How effective were they?
 - What improvements or adjustments have clients requested?

C. Community Interaction & Client Stickiness

What is your main goal in customer engagement?

- Providing warm, human service
- Tech replaces many interactions—booking rooms via phone, etc.
- In-person interaction still matters: walking past the front desk, casual follow-ups, personal connection—not transactional

What activities or space features help clients interact?

- No online community
- Some clients enjoy chatting
- Some want to collaborate or explore business opportunities

Tell us a success story where a client felt strongly about the space or service and chose to renew.

- High renewal rate—people stay if they get used to it
- Leaving usually due to company expansion
- Success factors:
 - Strong customer service
 - Good space quality
 - Comfortable capacity recommendations
 - Clean environment (cleaning staff present 7–8 hrs)
 - Some tenants rarely come in → quiet
 - Meeting rooms: 2 hours
 - Coffee beans & tea options → even held a vote for coffee
 - Rotating tea varieties become conversation starters

Differences in preferences by work mode or personality?

- Full-time vs hybrid vs freelancers
- Introverts vs extroverts
- How does community engagement influence retention?

Building activities / traditions

- Building events: opening ceremony rituals, Ghost Month rituals
 - Donations of rice and oil; sometimes ask tenants if they want to donate
 - Company prepares offerings

D. Facilities & Amenities

What amenities do clients use most?

- Common area: coffee machine, snacks
- But can't stay too long—don't want people occupying it all afternoon
- A place to hide from coworkers
- Previously held social events (pre-COVID) like Thanksgiving gatherings, snack days
- Some tenants very social; others prefer to avoid interaction
- Some wine companies want to host tasting events
- Client age/personality differences matter—some just want to work quietly

Other coworking brands referenced: JustCo, traditional business centers

E. New Clients, Retention, Renewal

How do you attract new clients?

What do you do to encourage renewals?

What do clients usually care about most?

What is the most important factor that makes clients stay?

Challenges you've encountered?

What do you think is the key to maintaining a strong retention rate?

F. Additional Questions

- Fun activities—e.g., former client from garment industry still stops by to see what's new
- Having small enjoyable things during work helps

If you could redesign the community strategy from scratch, what would you change?

In the next 2–3 years, what trends do you think will shape coworking and workplace communities?

What advice would you give to Industrious or similar coworking spaces to increase engagement and retention?

Interview #4 Eliana_Wang

[Add background context: Why we're doing this, who we're partnering with (Industrious), how we're interested in the summation of learnings across people we met, data will be anonymous, they'll receive a $15 Amazon giftcard at the end]

Greeting

Hi Eliana, this is Feifey from SVA. Thanks for joining!

Do you still have about 40 minutes available for our conversation today?

[If yes → continue]

[If no → Can you reschedule? If no → Thank you anyway, we'll end here.]

Outline Purpose and Ask Permission

Thanks for your participation. Today we want to talk to you about your experience with coworking spaces. [brief pause]

We're partnering with Industrious to understand what people need from shared workspaces. Everything you share will be anonymous and only used for this research study. You'll receive a $15 Amazon gift card afterward.

With your permission, I'd like to record this session, only for use in this study. Is that okay?

[If yes → continue]

[If no → dismiss, no incentive]

Participant Setup

Before I ask you some background questions, I want to remind you that there are no right or wrong answers - just be yourself and share your honest thoughts.

I don't work for Industrious, I'm just collecting feedback for our research. Please be honest with both positive and negative thoughts. Nothing you say will hurt my feelings.

I will now begin recording the session.

[Make sure to tap the record!]

Now that we're all set up, I'm going to ask you a few questions about yourself.

Ask for recording permission

A. Icebreaker (10min)

1. Can you briefly introduce yourself?

- a. What do you do, what is your job title, and how long have you been with your company? Audit senior, 2 years, audit financial statements
- b. Do you usually work in-person, remote, hybrid? How often do you get into the office? Hybrid, 3 days in office a week
- c. In a typical week, how many days do you come to this space? Are those dates mandatory that you come in or you choose to come in? What makes you want to come in? 2-3 days in offices, mandatory, doesn't want to come in (major demanded to come)
- d. [If hybrid] On other days, where do you work? Why do you work here instead of your office/co-working space? In house (no commute time need) or at a cafe (to change the environment) - too boring at home and no other people to watch -> more interesting and white noise like to stay focus on work
- e. What factors do you weigh when you're deciding where to work that day?
- f. Can you share a recent example of choosing to come in, and what influenced that choice? Meeting required with other people

2. Walk me through what you did here yesterday (or your last visit).

- a. Where did you work? A lot of meetings
 - b. What did you do?
3. Did you talk or collaborate with anyone while you were here? How did that usually happen? Other team members-> easier for them to get and ask questions, more details suggestions, and command to give/ the atmosphere of teamlike, companionate.
- a. Did you participate in any work events or activities? Meeting, social events, forum, networking events (across teams and or friends)
 - b. What influences your choice of where to sit or work? Seats with window, and more close spaces (less interrupt), screens that are curved (better for eyes)

B. Community Engagement (10 min)

1. Can you describe a time when you participated in a community activity and felt comfortable and engaged? Social networking event

- a. What kind of activities or events would make you want to join? Why? Events that provide free food
- b. Have community events or people here ever influenced your decision to come? Yes, only if the team members are joining then she will join (if not, she only goes there to grab the food then left)
 - i. Can you tell me about a time that happened? Fall theme, thanksgiving like, pie party, writing notes only joining b/c of her friends tell her to

2. Tell me about a time when you felt uncomfortable or disengaged in this space or during a community activity. Event that need to talk with strangers (forced to interact) - less interested in the event type/ she's more interested in event that is more playful, handcrafting, and performance to watch
3. What does "belonging" mean to you in a workspace?
 - a. Tell me more about that. Doesn't really matter in spacing, team in people matters more. The feeling of accomplishment as a team to achieve something.
4. Can you describe a moment when you really noticed or felt the community atmosphere here?
 - a. What was the event? What happened? Eating a meal together, feeling more connected and more willing to stay and work, building more loyalty to the team

C. Workspace & Amenity Usage (10 min)

1. Can you tell me about the amenities that you have in the working space? Free coffee machine, free snacks, open table for 4-6 people-> eat together at the table, small cubical for personal use, yoga room, meditation room, gym (downstairs), ping pong table, basketball hoop, foosball, wi-fi but slow and sometimes unstable, car stop(26 per time if you don't have annual pass)
2. Can you tell me about a recent time when the space or amenities helped you get your work done particularly well? Having coffee, and snacks -> recover from tiredness
 - a. What was happening at that moment?
 - b. What about the space or amenities made things easier or better for you?
3. When you think about your workday here, which amenities or features matter most to you? Coffee and snacks
 - a. What makes those particular things important for you?
 - b. If one of them changed or went away, how, if at all, would that influence your experience or decision to keep using this space? Yes, one of the cafe machines that brew better coffee was broken for a month, and she was really mad about it. Sometimes when she goes to the client where they have a better cafe machine, she will feel better when working.
4. What makes this specific space feel "worth coming to," if it does? X
 - a. How do the space, people, or atmosphere contribute to that feeling?
 - b. How might you describe that to a friend who's never been here?
5. Is there anything that feels missing or that could better support the way you work here? breakfast/ free food, unlimited snacks -> any kind of food
 - a. Tell me more about how that affects your experience now. Less likely to work and less delicate to go into office
 - b. What would be different for you if that were improved?
6. Have you seen anything in other offices or coworking spaces that you wish existed here? breakfast/ free food (variety) , gaming room, ice cream stand

- a. What was it, and what about it worked well there?
- b. How do you imagine it might affect your experience if it were available here?

D. What makes people stay/leave - Retention (10 min)

1. Can you recall a time when you thought about leaving space? When there's no one in the office, the chair is uncomfortable to sit on, when it's too noisy and doesn't feel relax like a home to work at
 - a. What made you feel that way?
2. Can you tell me about a time when something in the space wasn't available or didn't work the way you expected? Broken cafe machine, trying to work with her coworker but they are not at the office, teammates are not able to book(get the seats) that are beside -> will hv to walk around to discuss which is annoying/ sometimes even not on a same floor
 - a. What was the situation, and what didn't work or was missing?
 - b. How did that affect your work or your day? If a co-worker isn't there, she'd rather go back home because they aren't able to discuss.
3. Were there any obstacles that made it hard for you to feel engaged or connected? (e.g., scheduling, social dynamics, the environment) not sharing schedule w/ corker and manager then not able to find them when they want, when booking seats, teammates are not able to book(get the seats) that are beside -> will hv to walk around to discuss which is annoying
4. If you had the chance to change something about the space, what would you consider changing?
5. On the flip side, what experiences or features of the space made you want to stay? Faster and more stable wi-fi, special space like game console that would be more interesting, quiet space and discussion area (library like)
 - a. What kept you coming back?
6. What is your ideal working environment? At cafe shop - white noise, something to drink, able to focus(not too distract but somethings are still happening) still relax and an enclose space

E. Wrap-Up (3 min)

1. Is there any experience or story you think is important for understanding your office experience that we haven't discussed yet? Not really.

Can you share your preferred e-mail so I can process the Amazon $15 gift card.
 You should receive this in the next week or so but if you don't feel free to follow-up with
 chou4@sva.edu

Interview #5 Spencer_Kong

Spencer: My name is Spencer. I'm currently an MP student at NYU Wagner. I'm also working as a Budget Analyst and a College Aide in the miscellaneous revenue unit at the Mayor's Office of Management and Budget (OMB), which is a city government agency.

Interviewer: Could you tell me more about your job?

Spencer: I am a budget analyst and a college aide in the miscellaneous revenue unit.

Interviewer: You mentioned you work in the Mayor's office. How does that workplace or environment look? Are you asking for a physical description or a general feeling?

Interviewer: Generally, and you can describe some physical items.

Spencer: The Mayor's office has different offices, and we are one department. My floor is mostly cubicles, but they are not the high, soundproof type; we can see each other, and the soundproofing is okay. My floor is mostly very quiet, though I know other floors not directly related to budgeting (like administration) might have more small talk.

Interviewer: Does your job require collaboration with others?

Spencer: Yes, there is a lot of collaboration, but mostly through meeting platforms, like Teams. My supervisor and I are separated by only one aisle, but he prefers chatting via Teams so I can share my screen. Most meetings with other coworkers are also conducted over Teams.

Interviewer: Could you share the period that you worked?

Spencer: I started as an intern this summer, around June. After September, I transitioned from full-time to part-time.

Interviewer: Do you work five full days there?

Spencer: Not five days, I cannot afford five days. I am a full-time student. I usually work on Wednesdays and Fridays.

Interviewer: Can you share what a typical workday looks like?

Spencer: For example, on Friday, I usually go into the office around 9 to 10 AM. We have a flexible working schedule, and as a college aide, I have more flexible hours. Technically, we should arrive before 11 AM. I start by reading newsletters to catch up on city policy, current events, and any new laws or policies being launched. My department head sends an email regarding laws that have been repealed or new laws that might change policy and the revenues we collect.

On Fridays, my job responsibility is supporting building a centralized database. This involves organizing historical documents and data. For physical documents, I need to scan and file them into the database I am building. This lasts for the whole day, but I have a one-hour lunch break for a shift over seven to eight hours. For an eight-hour shift, I usually finish around 5:30 to 6:30 PM.

Interviewer: Do you do all your work within your cubicle?

Spencer: The historical documents are not stored in my cubicle. They are in file cases nearby, about a minute or two walk away, on the same floor, easily accessible.

My cubicle has some sort of glass walls. They are about one meter tall, slightly lower than me (I am 165 cm). It is a glass space, so people walking by can see people inside and what is on our computers. We have two monitors, which is great. The first day I came, they were already set up, and I linked them. We also have a very long table.

College aides and interns technically share the same cubicle, while full-time employees own their own. In our shared cubicle, I face front, and the other college aide faces west.

Interviewer: How do you feel about your environment versus that of the official employees?

Spencer: Official employees definitely have more space. They own the whole cubicle and can do whatever they want because they have shelves. I saw one coworker put out all his Pokemon collections. I cannot do that because my area doesn't own that shelf. Under my table, there are two small shelves where I put a lot of things. Full-time employees have more flexibility and freedom for decoration. Employees usually hang their suits somewhere in their cubicle, even though our department dresses more business casual. I don't have a hanger, but the person sitting behind me does.

Interviewer: You mentioned wanting to put items in your workspace. Why?

Spencer: I haven't put any decorations yet because my job is mostly contract-based, and I'm unsure when I will leave. But I do put utensils, tea, or coffee in the small shelves under the table because I use them. For example, I use my utensils during lunch break.

Interviewer: Can you explain more about your public spaces?

Spencer: Our floor has two pantries, one in the south and one in the north. They provide soap so we can wash our lunch boxes. The pantry has a water dispenser, a sink, and a fridge. There used to be a small oven, but it's broken. There are also two small round tables with a couple of chairs, and trash bins for recycling and waste.

Interviewer: Do you usually put food in the fridge?

Spencer: I always put food there because it's the closest fridge. We work in person usually Monday to Wednesday, and most units work from home Thursday and Friday. Monday to Wednesday, it's a little packed but still usable. We also have frozen sections, so people put ice cream in there.

I think people clean the fridge weekly, so it is not messy. There used to be an issue with people putting yogurt in the fridge and never consuming it. I often overheard coworkers ranting about expired yogurt. One day, I saw a poster on the fridge that looked AI-generated, requesting users to consume yogurt or throw it away if expired. People responded by putting stickers and comments on the poster. Later, someone removed the notes and posted a notice: "If you have things, consume it or take it home at the end of the day". Cleaning became quicker after that yogurt incident.

Interviewer: How do people in your office communicate with each other?

Spencer: The anonymous notice was used because the person leaving the yogurt didn't want to show up. Generally, we communicate via Teams; I think that's the most common way. Some units prefer meeting in person. Our floor has a very limited number of meeting rooms because most are huge, designed for 40 people.

For smaller units (maybe five people), they often find random file cases in the hallway and talk things over on top of them. We use these flat file cases as impromptu tables for meetings.

Interviewer: Did your team ever use that environment for a meeting?

Spencer: I never saw it. My team usually communicates on Teams and email.

Interviewer: How do other teams work, based on your observation of the file cases in the hallway?

Spencer: I have never had a meeting on the file cases. Teams with limited members (maybe four people) use them for a quick touch-up. They are all standing and having the conversation in a public space. The file cases are about chest height, so people can put their arms on them and talk. I think standing meetings might help reduce meeting time. I have never seen anyone standing there for over an hour.

Interviewer: What kind of situation would you use the 40-person meeting room for?

Spencer: Our team never used that room. Most of our meetings and presentations happen within the unit, often in the department head's office. I use the 40-person meeting room a lot because I used to have school meetings that were outside of work. I sometimes go to the office on Thursday and use my lunch break to book the meeting room for one hour, since nobody is really in the office, and they are working from home.

Interviewer: Why did you choose that meeting room for your schoolwork?

Spencer: That room is really close to my cubicle, and I think it is soundproof. When the door is closed, I cannot hear anything. Also, because it's such a large room, not many people want to occupy it, especially when people are working remotely.

Interviewer: Is there a managing system you use to book the room?

Spencer: On Thursday or Friday when the office is empty, people are probably okay with me walking in. To officially book the room, we use a system on Outlook. We create a new meeting, select the meeting room as the space, and once I send the request (even if only to myself), the room shows as unavailable for that time. Outlook and Teams are connected. Other people trying to book a physical room see it as unavailable.

Interviewer: When working remotely, where do you choose to work?

Spencer: I work in my bedroom. I prefer working at home so I can sleep longer and finish work quickly. I must mention that I cannot work remotely starting this September because, as part-time employees, we must work in person.

Interviewer: Are there any community events in your office?

Spencer: Yes, we have a lot of community groups. I have attended some cultural-based events. Events organized by HR typically occupy the bigger rooms on other floors and are usually for everyone at OMB. For smaller events, like the Woman's Initiative Network (for those self-identifying as women at OMB) or groups like data science, these are hosted by employees. These smaller groups usually share posters on each floor instead of HR sending mass emails. Near the front desk, there is a whiteboard. People write topics on it, and others write comments. It's mostly for engagement and anonymity, and sometimes HR or smaller clubs post event information on it. I don't always bypass that whiteboard because I usually choose a direct path to my cubicle.

Interviewer: Can you share an experience attending an office community event?

Spencer: A recent event was the Woman's Initiative Network hosting "Craft at Clab" for Halloween on October 29th. I went there; snacks and materials were provided. In the beginning, the host asked us to introduce ourselves. After introductions (attendees were all women), the host showed a YouTube video on how to make different paper crafts for Halloween. After the video, we crafted and chatted with the people sitting next to us. I went with my friend, and we chatted about recent updates, work, and future plans—catching up. I didn't talk to the people sitting around me.

I'm kind of an introvert. I only stayed for about 30 minutes because my bubble tea was ready, and I had to leave.

Interviewer: What kind of event would you be more comfortable with?

Spencer: Events that are more of a panelist format. Someone presents in front, and I can listen from the back. Throughout the summer, HR hosted knowledge-sharing events almost every week about what different OMB units were doing. I enjoy those events because I can chat with the people I want. I feel more comfortable with those kinds of one-on-one interactions.

Interviewer: Why did you feel uncomfortable in the Woman's Initiative situation?

Spencer: The reason I didn't want to network was that we didn't have much to talk about. I felt too young to talk with those women; they are full-time employees, not in the same unit, and doing completely different things. Also, I wasn't that intrigued by what they were doing. My friend and I were talking about visa issues and the future possibility of extending our contract. People working full-time in the city government usually have to be citizens or have a green card, so they might not have knowledge or interest in visa problems, which are very tricky. We wanted to keep that sensitive conversation between us.

As an introvert, I prefer one-on-one meetings or networking. I am okay with larger networking events, provided I prepare myself for them.

Interviewer: Why do you feel you have to prepare?

Spencer: I am not good at starting conversations with people I know nothing about. I always research who is attending, the topic, the purpose, and, most importantly, the dress code. I don't want to show up in a hoodie and sneakers when everyone else is suited up.

In the working environment, most people are kind of introverted—the type to deal with numbers, otherwise they wouldn't do budgeting. Most work networking events in our department are casual. Most conferences I attend are actually at NYU, often alumni networking. I look at the panelists and those who have registered, so I know where to start.

Interviewer: Do you feel a sense of belonging working in this place?

Spencer: Yes, I do feel that is very important. Belonging means two things to me: one is work stability (as an international student, if the company cannot sponsor me, I don't feel belonging). The other is mental belonging; I wouldn't be comfortable if the environment were very extrovert-friendly.

When I started my internship, I did training at City Hall. The HR staff there started small talk the moment you stepped into the elevator. The small talk felt fake. I heard three non-work-related conversations start within an hour in the training cubicle. I am uncomfortable with suddenly starting a personal, unnecessary conversation when it's working hours, and I prefer to focus on my work. Also, as an Asian person, I am happy that my floor is Asian friendly; there are a lot of Asian people on my floor.

Interviewer: Can you tell me about the amenities you have?

Spencer: Besides the pantries, my floor has two cabinets for office supplies, like pencils, pens, tapes, and staplers. The pantry has a box of sugar leftover from events. We have a dispenser for hygiene products (like pads), but they are charged at $0.75.

Interviewer: Which amenity matters most to you?

Spencer: I use the pantry every day, so I think the pantry is more important. We also have a microwave in the pantry. I heat up my own lunch and bring it to the small round table in the pantry to eat, usually watching my phone.

Interviewer: Is lunchtime a time for you to meet your friend?

Spencer: We meet quite frequently. Sometimes she comes to my cubicle, and we have about a 10-minute catchup. One time, we went outside during lunchtime, grabbed coffee, and sat in a nearby park. I am the kind of person who doesn't want to go out, but she suggested it. When we meet in the office, we have a short 10-minute chat because the cubicles are not soundproof, and we can see and hear each other. Over 10 minutes, I feel it is inappropriate to have a long conversation there, even though people probably don't care. Outside, nobody cares, and we have freedom.

Interviewer: Can you tell me about a time when something in the workspace was unavailable or didn't work as expected?

Spencer: Most issues I have encountered have been with the equipment I use. The monitor with the camera started having glitches and blacking out since August. IT said we needed to change the monitor, but they didn't have new ones. Also, on my first day, the mouse and keyboard provided were really greasy. It was disgusting, but after using it for a while, I somehow made it clean. The chair also had random crumbs on the cushion that were hard to wipe away, but it somehow got cleaner over time. These difficulties were only with the equipment assigned to me.

Interviewer: What is your ideal working environment?

Spencer: Ideally, it is clean, organized. Everything works perfectly. There is no small talk. There is very less competition, and people are peaceful and respectful. Also, less talk.

Interviewer: Does the current place fit your ideal? What could be improved?

Spencer: So far, it is very great by my standards. Maybe some more free food would be better.

Interviewer: If you were a customer in a coworking space, what would you care about?

Spencer: My biggest concern is cleanliness and organization. Also, free Wi-Fi would be good (our unit doesn't have Wi-Fi). If there is Wi-Fi, there should also be hot water. And if there is free tissue. We only have rough hand-wiping paper in the pantry, but no facial tissue.

Interviewer: Are there any amenities you see elsewhere that you want in your office?

Spencer: Maybe free hygiene products. Usually, there are free pads or tampons, but in our office, they are charged. Also, if there was free candy at the front desk.

Spencer: I feel my team has a similar personality to mine. That makes me feel safe. I don't have to talk to people that much, and if I don't talk, they won't judge me. This creates a sense of safety

Interviewer: 在我開始問問題之前，我想提醒你，這裡沒有對或錯的答案。做你自己，你給的每個回答對我們來說都很有價值。你可以簡短介紹一下自己嗎？比如說，你現在是在工作還是學生？

Spencer: 我叫 Spencer。我現在是 NYU Wagner 的 MP 學生。我也在市長預算管理辦公室 (OMB) 裡的雜項收入部門 (miscellaneous revenue unit) 擔任預算分析師和大學生助理，這是一個市政府的機構。

Interviewer: 你可以跟我多說一點你的工作嗎？

Spencer: 我是預算分析師，同時也是雜項收入部門的大學生助理。

Interviewer: 你提到你在市長辦公室工作。那個工作環境看起來是什麼樣？你是問實體空間的描述還是整體感覺？

Interviewer: 一般來說，你也可以描述一些實體的東西。

Spencer: 市長辦公室有很多不同的部門，我們是其中一個部門。我的樓層大多是隔間，但不是那種高的、隔音的隔間；我們彼此可以看到，也還算有一點隔音。我的樓層大部分時候都很安靜，不過我知道其他樓層如果不是做預算（像行政部門）可能會有更多聊天。

Interviewer: 你的工作需要跟別人合作嗎？

Spencer: 需要，有很多合作，但大多透過 Teams 開會。我跟我的主管只隔著一條走道，但他喜歡用 Teams 聊天，因為我可以分享螢幕。大部分跟其他同事的會議也都是透過 Teams。

Interviewer: 你可以分享一下你工作的期間嗎？

Spencer: 我今年夏天，大概六月開始當實習生。九月之後，我從全職轉成兼職。

Interviewer: 你是五天都去嗎？

Spencer: 不是，我負擔不起五天。我是全職學生。我通常禮拜三跟禮拜五去上班。

Interviewer: 你可以分享一下你典型一天的行程嗎？

Spencer: 例如禮拜五，我通常九點到十點之間到辦公室。我們的工作時間滿彈性的，作為大學生助理，我有更彈性的工時。理論上，我們應該十一點前到。我通常會先讀新聞簡報，了解市政府

策、時事、以及任何新的法規或政策。我的部門主管會寄 email，說哪些法律被廢止或有哪些新法規可能會改變政策、影響我們收的收入。

禮拜五，我的工作主要是協助建立一個集中式資料庫。這包含整理歷史文件跟資料。實體文件的話，我要掃描並把它們放進我建立的資料庫。這件事會持續一整天，不過我有一個小時的午休。通常如果是八小時的班，我會大概五點半到六點半下班。

Interviewer: 你所有的工作都是在你的隔間裡做嗎？

Spencer: 歷史文件不放在我的隔間。它們在附近的文件櫃裡，大概走一兩分鐘，同一層，很容易拿。

我的隔間有一種玻璃牆，大概一公尺高，比我（165 公分）略低。它是透明的，所以走過的人都可以看到裡面的人跟我們電腦螢幕上的東西。我們有兩個螢幕，這很棒。我第一天來的時候就已經設好了，我只要把我的電腦接上即可。我們也有很長的桌子。

大學生助理跟實習生其實是共用一個隔間，全職員工才有自己的。共享隔間裡，我面向前方，另一個大學生助理面向西邊。

Interviewer: 你覺得你的環境和正式員工的環境有什麼差別？

Spencer: 正式員工的空間明顯比較大。他們擁有整個隔間，而且可以想怎麼佈置就怎麼佈置，他們有自己的架子。我看到一個同事把他的寶可夢收藏全部擺出來。我不能這樣做，因為那個架子不是我的。我桌子下有兩個小架子，我會把一些東西放裡面。正式員工有更多自由去裝飾自己的空間。他們也通常會把西裝掛在自己的隔間裡，雖然我們部門的穿著比較偏 business casual。我沒有衣架，但我後面的人有。

Interviewer: 你提到想在你的空間放一些東西。為什麼？

Spencer: 我還沒放任何裝飾，因為我的工作大多是合約型的，我不確定我什麼時候會離開。但我會放一些用得上的東西在桌子下的小架子，例如午餐時間會用的餐具。

Interviewer: 你可以多描述一下你們的公共空間嗎？

Spencer: 我們那層樓有兩個茶水間，一個在南邊，一個在北邊。他們有提供肥皂讓我們洗午餐盒。茶水間有飲水機、水槽跟冰箱。本來有小烤箱，但壞了。也有兩張小的圓桌和幾張椅子，還有垃圾桶跟回收桶。

Interviewer: 你通常會把食物放進冰箱嗎？

Spencer: 我一定會，因為那是最近的冰箱。我們通常是禮拜一到禮拜三到辦公室，禮拜四禮拜五大部分單位會在家工作。禮拜一到禮拜三冰箱會有點擠但還是能用。冰箱也有冷凍區，所以會有人放冰淇淋。

我覺得有人每週清一次冰箱，所以不會太亂。以前曾經有很多人把優格放進去但完全不吃。我常常聽到同事抱怨過期優格。然後有一天我看到冰箱上貼了一張看起來像是 AI-generated 的海報，要求大家吃掉或丟掉過期優格。大家就在那張海報上貼貼紙、留言。後來，有人把那些貼紙移除，

貼了一個正式的通知：「如果你有東西，請吃掉或在當天帶回家。」在那次優格事件後清潔的速度變快了。

Interviewer：你們辦公室的溝通方式大多是怎麼樣？

Spencer：那個匿名告示就是因為不想露出是誰放的優格。一般來說，我們都是用 Teams；我覺得那是最常見的。有些單位偏好實體開會。因為我們那層樓小型會議室很少，多數是能容納 40 人的大會議室。

像比較小的單位（可能五個人）常常會在走廊的文件櫃旁邊開會，他們把文件櫃當成臨時桌面。

Interviewer：你們單位有使用過走廊文件櫃那種空間開會嗎？

Spencer：我沒看過。我的團隊通常用 Teams 或 email 溝通。

Interviewer：那你觀察到其他團隊怎麼用那些文件櫃？

Spencer：我從來沒有站在那邊開過會。小型單位（大概四個人）會在那邊快速討論。他們會站著，然後在公共空間聊事情。文件櫃大概到胸口高度，所以大家可以靠著。站著開會可能讓會議比較短。我沒有看過有人站超過一小時。

Interviewer：什麼情況會用到 40 人的大會議室？

Spencer：我們團隊從來沒用過。大部分會議跟簡報都在部門主管的辦公室裡。我自己倒是常用那個大會議室，因為以前我常在工作時間之外有學校的 meeting。我有時會禮拜四去公司，在午休時借那個會議室一個小時，因為那天幾乎沒有人在公司，大家都在家工作。

Interviewer：你為什麼選那個會議室來做學校的事？

Spencer：那個房間離我的隔間非常近，而且我覺得它隔音很好。門關起來我完全聽不到外面。再加上那個房間很大，沒有人會想佔用它，尤其是居家工作的日子。

Interviewer：你們有什麼系統可以預訂會議室嗎？

Spencer：在禮拜四或禮拜五、辦公室空的時候，大家大概也不會介意我直接走進去。但如果要正式預訂，我們是用 Outlook。建立一個新的 meeting，把會議室選成場地，然後寄出（即使只有寄給自己），那段時間那間房間就會顯示已被占用。Outlook 跟 Teams 是同步的。別人想訂就會看到它已經 unavailable。

Interviewer：你在家工作時會選擇在哪裡？

Spencer：我在我的房間工作。我比較喜歡在家，因為可以睡比較久，也能比較快完成工作。但我要提到的是，我從九月開始不能遠距了，因為兼職員工必須親自到辦公室。

Interviewer：你們辦公室有社群活動嗎？

Spencer: 有，我們有很多社群活動。我參加過一些文化相關的活動。HR 辦的活動通常會在其他樓層的大空間，對 OMB 所有人開放。小型的活動像 Woman's Initiative Network (給自我認同為女性的員工) 或資料科學小組，是由員工自己辦的。這些小活動通常貼海報在各樓層，而不是 HR 寄 email。

前台附近有一個白板，大家會在上面寫一些話題，然後別人會留言。主要是增加互動跟匿名性。有時候 HR 或小型社群會在那裡貼活動訊息。但我不一定經過那裡，因為我通常直走到我的隔間。

Interviewer: 你可以分享一次你參加社群活動的經驗嗎？

Spencer: 最近一次是 Woman's Initiative Network 在 10/29 辦的「Craft at Clab」萬聖節活動。我去了，現場有提供零食跟材料。開始時，主持人請大家自我介紹。介紹完 (參加者都是女性)，主持人播放了一個 YouTube 教學影片，是做不同萬聖節紙手作。看完之後，我們就開始做手作。我跟我朋友一起去，我們主要聊最近的近況、工作跟未來規劃，就是 catch up。我沒有跟旁邊的人聊天。

我是有點內向的人。我只待了大概 30 分鐘，因為我的手搖飲準備好了，我要去拿。

Interviewer: 什麼樣的活動讓你比較舒服？

Spencer: 比較像 panel 的活動。有人在前面講，我可以在後面聽。整個夏天 HR 幾乎每週都辦分享活動，介紹不同 OMB 單位在做什麼。我喜歡這種活動，因為我可以跟我想聊的人聊。我比較喜歡一對一的互動。

Interviewer: 你為什麼在 Woman's Initiative 的活動裡覺得不舒服？

Spencer: 我不太想 networking，因為我不知道要聊什麼。我覺得我跟那些女性員工年紀差太多，她們是全職、單位不同、做的事情完全不同。而且我對她們做的內容也沒有特別興趣。我跟我朋友當時在聊簽證跟未來能不能延長合約。市府的全職通常都要綠卡或公民，所以她們可能對簽證問題不熟或沒興趣，而這些是我們不太能公開講的敏感議題。我們想保護自己的談話內容。

身為內向的人，我也比較喜歡一對一的 networking。我也可以接受大型的 networking 活動，但我需要先準備好。

Interviewer: 為什麼你覺得需要準備？

Spencer: 因為我不擅長跟完全不認識的人開始對話。我會先查誰會來、主題是什麼、目的以及最重要的 dress code。我不想穿帽 T 和球鞋去，結果大家都穿西裝。

在工作環境裡，大部分人都是有點內向的——會做預算的人，不然他們也不會選預算這個工作。我們單位的 networking 活動一般也很 casual。我參加的大部分會議其實是在 NYU，是校友的 networking 活動。我會去看 panel 的人跟已註冊的人，這樣我知道從哪裡開始。

Interviewer: 你覺得在公司有歸屬感嗎？

Spencer: 有, 我覺得很重要。歸屬感對我來說有兩件事: 一是工作的穩定性(作為國際學生, 如果公司不能 sponsor 我, 那我就不會有歸屬感)。第二是心理上的歸屬; 如果環境非常外向, 我會不舒服。

我開始實習的時候, 在市政廳受訓。HR 工作人員在電梯裡就開始 small talk, 那種 small talk 很假。我一個小時內聽到三段非工作的閒聊。我不喜歡上班時間突然開始一些私人、沒必要的話題, 我會想專心工作。還有, 作為亞洲人, 我覺得我那層樓很友善, 亞洲人很多, 我很開心。

Interviewer: 你可以說說你們有什麼配備或設施嗎?

Spencer: 除了茶水間, 我們樓層還有兩個櫃子放辦公用品, 例如筆、膠帶、釘書機等。茶水間有一箱活動剩下來的糖。我們有販賣機賣衛生用品(像衛生棉), 但要 0.75 美元。

Interviewer: 哪個設施對你最重要?

Spencer: 我每天都會用茶水間, 所以應該是茶水間最重要。我們也有微波爐。我會加熱自己的午餐, 然後帶去茶水間的小圓桌邊吃邊看手機。

Interviewer: 午餐時間是你跟朋友碰面的時間嗎?

Spencer: 我們滿常碰面的。有時候她會來我的隔間, 我們會聊 10 分鐘。也有一次我們走出去買咖啡, 然後坐在附近的公園。我個人是那種不太想離開辦公室的人, 但她提議就去了。在辦公室的隔間裡聊天通常超過 10 分鐘我會覺得不太適合, 因為隔間不隔音, 大家都看得到、聽得到。雖然可能沒人在意, 但我會在意。出去的時候比較自由, 沒有人管我們。

Interviewer: 你可以分享一次工作空間的設備不能用、或沒有如預期運作的經驗嗎?

Spencer: 大部分的問題都是設備的問題。攝影機那台螢幕從八月開始會閃爍、變黑。IT 說需要換新的螢幕, 但他們沒有新的。還有第一天來時給我的滑鼠跟鍵盤真的超油、超噁心, 但後來用久了就變乾淨了。椅子上也有碎屑, 很難擦, 但後來也乾淨了。這些問題都是分配給我的設備。

Interviewer: 你理想中的工作環境是什麼?

Spencer: 乾淨、整齊、所有設備都能完美運作。沒有 small talk。競爭很少, 人們和平、尊重。然後講話少一點。

Interviewer: 現在的地方符合你的理想嗎? 有什麼可以改善的?

Spencer: 以我的標準來說, 它已經非常好了。也許可以多一些免費食物。

Interviewer: 如果你是一個 coworking space 的客人, 你會在意什麼?

Spencer: 我最在意的是乾淨與整理好。另外如果有免費 Wi-Fi 會很好(我們單位沒有 Wi-Fi)。如果有 Wi-Fi, 最好也有熱水。如果有免費的面紙也不錯。我們茶水間只有粗糙的擦手紙, 沒有面紙。

Interviewer: 你有看到別的地方有什麼設施, 你希望你們辦公室也有嗎?

Spencer: 或許免費的衛生用品。通常會有免費的衛生棉或棉條，但我們辦公室要付費。另外如果前台有免費糖果也不錯。

Spencer: 我覺得我的團隊跟我個性很像，這讓我覺得很安全。我不需要跟別人多講話，如果我不講話，他們也不會評價我。這讓我覺得有安全感。

[Add background context: Why we're doing this, who we're partnering with (Industrious), how we're interested in the summation of learnings across people we met, data will be anonymous, they'll receive a $15 Amazon giftcard at the end]

Greeting

Hi [Interviewee Name], this is [Your Name] from SVA. Thanks for joining!
Do you still have about 40 minutes available for our conversation today?

[If yes → continue]

[If no → Can you reschedule? If no → Thank you anyway, we'll end here.]

Outline Purpose and Ask Permission

Thanks for your participation. Today we want to talk to you about your experience with coworking spaces. [brief pause]

We're partnering with Industrious to understand what people need from shared workspaces. Everything you share will be anonymous and only used for this research study. You'll receive a $15 Amazon gift card afterward.

With your permission, I'd like to record this session, only for use in this study. Is that okay?

[If yes → continue]

[If no → dismiss, no incentive]

Participant Setup

Before I ask you some background questions, I want to remind you that there are no right or wrong answers - just be yourself and share your honest thoughts.

I don't work for Industrious, I'm just collecting feedback for our research. Please be honest with both positive and negative thoughts. Nothing you say will hurt my feelings.

I will now begin recording the session.

[Make sure to tap record!]

Now that we're all set up, I'm going to ask you a few questions about yourself.

Ask for recording permission

A. Icebreaker (10min)

1. Can you briefly introduce yourself?

- a. What do you do, what is your job title, and how long have you been with your company?
- b. Do you usually work in-person, remote, hybrid? How often do you get into the office?
- c. In a typical week, how many days do you come to this space? Are those dates mandatory that you come in or you choose to come in? What makes you want to come in?
- d. [If hybrid] On other days, where do you work? Why do you work here instead of your office/co-working space?
- e. What factors do you weigh when you're deciding where to work that day?
- f. Can you share a recent example of choosing to come in, and what influenced that choice?

2. Walk me through what you did here yesterday (or your last visit).

- a. Where did you work?
 - b. What did you do?
3. Did you talk or collaborate with anyone while you were here? How did that usually happen?
- a. Did you participate in any work events or activities?
 - b. What influences your choice of where to sit or work?

B. Community Engagement (10 min)

1. Can you describe a time when you participated in a community activity and felt comfortable and engaged?

- a. What kind of activities or events would make you want to join? Why?
- b. Have community events or people here ever influenced your decision to come?
 - i. Can you tell me about a time that happened?

2. Tell me about a time when you felt uncomfortable or disengaged in this space or during a community activity.

3. What does "belonging" mean to you in a workspace?
- a. Tell me more about that.
4. Can you describe a moment when you really noticed or felt the community atmosphere here?
- a. What was the event? What happened?

C. Workspace & Amenity Usage (10 min)

1. Can you tell me about the amenities that you have in the working space?
2. Can you tell me about a recent time when the space or amenities helped you get your work done particularly well?
 - a. What was happening at that moment?
 - b. What about the space or amenities made things easier or better for you?
3. When you think about your workday here, which amenities or features matter most to you?
 - a. What makes those particular things important for you?
 - b. If one of them changed or went away, how, if at all, would that influence your experience or decision to keep using this space?
4. What makes this specific space feel “worth coming to,” if it does?
 - a. How do the space, people, or atmosphere contribute to that feeling?
 - b. How might you describe that to a friend who’s never been here?
5. Is there anything that feels missing or that could better support the way you work here?
 - a. Tell me more about how that affects your experience now.
 - b. What would be different for you if that were improved?
6. Have you seen anything in other offices or coworking spaces that you wish existed here?
 - a. What was it, and what about it worked well there?
 - b. How do you imagine it might affect your experience if it were available here?

D. What makes people stay/leave - Retention (10 min)

1. Can you recall a time when you thought about leaving the space?
 - a. What made you feel that way?
2. Can you tell me about a time when something in the space wasn’t available or didn’t work the way you expected?
 - a. What was the situation, and what didn’t work or was missing?
 - b. How did that affect your work or your day?
3. Were there any obstacles that made it hard for you to feel engaged or connected?
(e.g., scheduling, social dynamics, the environment)
4. If you had the chance to change something about the space, what would you consider changing?
5. On the flip side, what experiences or features of the space made you want to stay?
 - a. What kept you coming back?
6. What is your ideal working environment?

E. Wrap-Up (3 min)

1. Is there any experience or story you think is important for understanding your office experience that we haven't discussed yet?

Can you share your preferred e-mail so I can process the Amazon $15 gift card.
You should receive this in the next week or so but if you don't feel free to follow-up with chou4@sva.edu

Some other questions

Interview Questions from User Research Session

Opening Questions

1. Tell me a bit about yourself and what you do for work or school
2. How does your work look day to day?

Work Setup Questions

1. Who were the clients that you tend to work with?
2. Do you have an office space that you can go to?
3. Do you ever go into offices?
4. Have you ever thought about joining a company full time or having more like a routine or structure in your work?

Third Space Decision-Making

1. How do you make that decision on where you go and where are you optimizing for in a third space?
2. Have you ever rented like a WeWork or another coworking space?

Verse Coworking Space

1. What led you to start looking for a coworking space?
2. What did you want to optimize or get from the coworking space that working at a library or coffee shop wouldn't give you?
3. What about that makes it "too fun to be an office"? What made it feel that way?
4. Tell me about why that's important to be surrounded by creators
5. How do you imagine engaging with that community?

Programming & Events

1. What are your thoughts on having more game nights or meeting other creators in the space?
2. What about tea night does that really well? (in terms of showing up as yourself)
3. Tell me about some events at Verse that you were not interested in or didn't go to and why
4. How do you feel about more professional or educational events?

Space Design & Amenities

1. Tell me about the Google campus - what did you like about it?
2. Why is it important to have different seating configurations?
3. Are there any other types of amenities that would be interesting to you?
4. What else would you want offered in terms of services or amenities?

Hybrid Work

1. What would excite you about coming into an office 2 times a week?
2. What would make you want to come in on a daily basis?

Community Influence

1. How did your friends talk about Verse?
2. Would you go back to Verse now?
3. Did you interact with the staff on a daily basis?

Wrap-up

1. How would you describe what Verse is?
2. Why isn't it just a coworking space

Exercise?

1. Introducing a new building opening, and see what are their thoughts?
2. Showing the current workspace, ask what they are interested in.

Asking about topics related to the company's goal (e.g. Non-social event)

Asking from personal value to service/system

Why and Why.

Asking for different perspectives: e.g. what do your friends think about it?

Feifey's Notes:

Work

- NYU full time student
- Budget analysts
- Mayor's office
- Intern from June
- Transferring from full time to part time
 - Contract base
- Monday and Friday working
- Sometimes going in on Thursday only using the meeting room

Office

- Different office and department

Greeting 開場問候

Hi HS Huang, 我是 SVA 的 Feifey。謝謝你今天撥空參加！
想先確認一下，你現在是否還有大約 40 分鐘可以聊聊呢？

[如果回答「有」→ 繼續訪談]

[如果回答「沒有」→ 詢問是否方便改期；若不方便 → 感謝對方時間，結束訪談。]

Outline Purpose and Ask Permission

說明目的並取得同意

非常感謝你願意參與。今天我們主要想了解你
在共享工作空間(coworking space)裡的使用經驗。[稍微停頓一下]

我們目前與 Industrious 合作，希望更了解大家
對共用工作空間的需求。你分享的所有內容都會匿名處理，
只會用在這次研究當中。訪談結束後，你會收到一張 15 美元的 Amazon 禮品卡。

在你同意的情況下，我想錄製這次訪談，只會用於本次研究。這樣可以嗎？

[如果回答「可以」→ 繼續]

[如果回答「不方便」→ 結束訪談，且不發放禮品卡]

受訪者暖身與說明

在開始之前，我想先提醒你，今天並沒有「標準答案」或「對錯」之分，
請你做自己、自然分享你的真實想法就好。

我本身並不是 Industrious 的員工，只是為了這次研究在蒐集回饋。
所以請放心說出真實感受，不管是正面或負面都沒關係，
你說的任何內容都不會傷害到我的感受。

接下來我要開始錄音囉。

[記得按下錄音鍵！]

現在一切都準備好了，我會先從幾個關於你的背景問題開始。

Ask for recording permission (錄音同意已在上面取得)

A. Icebreaker 暖身問題(約 10 分鐘)

1. 你可以先簡單介紹一下自己嗎？

a. 你目前的工作內容與職稱是什麼？在現在這家公司待了多久？

Auditor- senior assurance 4 yrs

b. 你平常主要是實體上班、遠端工作，還是混合(hybrid)？

通常一週會進辦公室幾天-5 days？

Mostly in office

c. 在一個典型的一週裡，你大概有幾天會來到這個空間工作？

這些天是公司規定你必須進來，還是你自己選擇來？

是什麼讓你想要特別來這裡？

7 days allow to hybrid but mostly goes in office - 但去辦公室比較有動力 在辦公是大家一起工作比較有動力

d. [如果是 hybrid]其他沒有來這裡的日子，你通常在哪裡工作？

為什麼會選擇那個地方，而不是來辦公室／共享工作空間？

e. 當你每天決定「要去哪裡工作」的時候，你會考量哪些因素？通常是考慮是不是忙季，如果是忙季會坐在manajor附近的位子然後如果是沒那麼忙會選在比較是個人座位的地方或是樓下的咖啡

f. 可以分享一個最近的例子嗎？就是你選擇來這裡工作的一天，當時是什麼影響了你的這個決定？

2. 可以跟我說說，你昨天(或你上一次來這裡的那一天)在這裡都做了些什麼嗎？

a. 那天你主要是在哪些地方坐或工作？

b. 你在這裡做了哪些事情？

3. 在這裡的時候，你有跟其他人說話或合作嗎？通常是怎麼發生的？

- a. 那天你有參加任何工作相關的活動或事件嗎？
 - b. 是什麼影響你選擇要坐在哪裡或在哪個區域工作？

B. Community Engagement 社群互動與參與(約 10 分鐘)

1. 能不能描述一段, 你參加這裡社群活動、覺得很「自在、投入」的經驗？沒什麼社群活動大部分是公司自己辦的與大樓叫沒有關係
 - a. 什麼樣的活動或事件, 會讓你特別想參加？為什麼？
 - b. 這裡的社群活動或是其他人, 曾經影響你「決定要不要來這裡」嗎？
 - i. 可以跟我說說有一次發生這種情況的經驗嗎？
 2. 請你回想, 有沒有在這個空間、或是參與社群活動時, 曾經感到「有點不舒服」或「有點疏離、沒有被包容」的經驗？
可以說說那次發生了什麼嗎？並不是什麼活動 但是是忙季的時候 因為位子有限大家又都需要進公司, 所以平常工作的那層樓會變得很擠 幾乎沒有自己的空間然後很容易碰到其他人, 走過去的人也是。很容易產生摩擦 因為已經讓位讓他們過了還是會碰到就會覺得很不爽
 3. 對你來說, 在一個工作空間裡, 「有歸屬感」代表什麼？有團隊的感覺, 會比較像關係很好的大學生 工作起來會比較開心而且連接感比較強
 - a. 可以再多說一點, 你是怎麼感受到那種歸屬感的？會比較願意工作 大家一起努力產出報告的感覺
 4. 你是否有過某一刻, 特別「注意到」或「意識到」這裡的社群氛圍？
可以描述那個時候發生了什麼嗎？應該是大家私底下還是會一起出門吃飯喝酒唱歌 然後還會一起慶生的時候 就算現在離職手續還是會聚在一起慶祝 偶爾也還是會回去辦公室探望大家
 - a. 那時的活動是什麼？具體發生了什麼事情？

C. Workspace & Amenity Usage 工作空間與設施使用(約 10 分鐘)

1. 你可以跟我介紹一下, 這個工作空間裡有哪些你會使用到的設施或配備嗎？
公司自己: 每層都有茶水間 我們辦公室的樓層在兩邊的角落也有小休息區還有咖啡機小沙發跟靠窗的桌子可以換位子轉換心情 有時候也有零食 但是是老闆的秘書選的然後好吃的很快就被拿完了 要早一點去拿 有小辦公室大概4-6個人的空間 看到沒人再用就可以走進去 公司的其他樓層也有大會議室但大部分都是partner或是有外賓要開會的時候他們才會去那邊 因為那邊要預約但是幾乎約不到 因為都先被大老闆們訂走了 如果要和大老闆開會會拜託他們的秘書喬一個時間然後在那邊的大會議室開會 那邊的會議室有很多

間有很大的大概可以二十幾個人也有小的只能四個人的空間 其他特別的是在28樓有一個咖啡空間 就真的是開放空間然後有電話間有大桌子跟小桌子(有隔板的) 整個空間做得很像咖啡廳 那邊也有很多台咖啡機(這個要投幣) 因為還有一個7-11的咖啡機所以要喝的話不用特別跑很遠買 地下室還有一個公司自己的包裹收發點 所以如果有東西要寄送就可以去樓下

2. 可不可以分享一個最近的例子: 某一次這裡的空間或設施, 特別幫助你順利完成工作的情况?

應該是咖啡機跟辦公室的角落區域 咖啡機就是可以比較舒緩工作的緊繃情緒會心情好一點然後辦公室角落的話就是工作到很累的時候轉換心情這樣才比較有動力繼續做事

- a. 那個時候正在發生什麼事?
- b. 是空間或哪一項設施, 讓你覺得事情變得更順利或更輕鬆?

3. 當你想到自己在這裡的一個上班日, 哪些設施或空間特徵對你最重要?

- a. 為什麼那些特別重要? 最重要的還是座位跟咖啡機吧 因為座位是做工作做到很累的時候但是想要走走或是轉換心情繼續工作的時候會很有用的地方, 不然會很影響工作效率
- b. 如果其中一項被改變或拿掉了, 你覺得這會怎麼影響你在這裡的體驗, 或你是否會繼續使用這個空間? 不會欸但是是會心情變很糟, 感覺會影響到工作效率

4. 對你來說, 什麼讓這個空間會讓你覺得「值得特地來一趟」, 如果有的話? 好象不太會是好象不太會是因為空間談, 除了大家一起在工作的工作氣氛之外(會感覺不能偷懶)因為面對面比較好找人所以大部分人還是會面對面工作

- a. 空間本身、人, 或者整體氛圍, 是怎麼一起促成這種感覺的?
- b. 如果你要跟一個從來沒來過這裡的朋友描述這個地方, 你會怎麼形容?

5. 你覺得這裡有沒有什麼目前還「缺少」的東西, 或是有什麼可以更好地支持你在這裡工作的方式?

希望有多一點的個人位子或是有圍欄的位子最好高一點不要看到別人在做什麼 別人也看不到自己 然後希望有更多的免費零食最好是可以投票說看自己要吃什麼的那種

- a. 可以再多說說, 現在這個缺口是怎麼影響你的使用體驗的?
- b. 如果這個部分被改善了, 對你來說會有什麼不同?

6. 你在其他辦公室或共享工作空間, 有沒有看過什麼設計或設施, 是你也希望這裡能有的?

- a. 那是什麼? 在那裡是怎麼運作、為什麼你覺得它很好?
- b. 如果這樣的東西也出現在這裡, 你想像中你的使用體驗會有什麼改變?

D. What makes people stay/leave – Retention

什麼讓人留下或離開——留存與流失(約 10 分鐘)

1. 你是否曾經想過要「不再來」這個空間？
 - a. 那次是什麼讓你有這樣的念頭？
2. 可不可以說說，有沒有某一次，這裡的某個空間或設施沒有如你預期地運作，或是當時你需要的東西不在／不夠？
 - a. 當時的情況是什麼？是什麼地方沒運作好或是缺少了什麼？
 - b. 這對你那天的工作或心情有什麼影響？
3. 從你的角度看，有沒有什麼阻礙，會讓你比較難在這裡感到「投入」或「有連結感」？
(例如：時間安排、社交互動的模式、環境本身等等)
4. 如果給你一個機會，可以改變這個空間的一些地方，你會最優先考慮改變什麼？
5. 反過來看，有哪些空間的體驗或特質，會讓你更想要繼續待在這裡？
 - a. 是什麼讓你願意一再回來？
6. 你心目中「理想的工作環境」是什麼樣子？
可以描述一下那個畫面或感覺嗎？

E. Wrap-Up 收尾(約 3 分鐘)

1. 最後，你覺得有沒有什麼關於你在辦公室或這個工作空間的經驗、故事或細節，是對理解你的工作生活很重要、但我們還沒有談到的？

如果方便的話，可以留一下你偏好的 Email 嗎？
這樣我就可以寄出 15 美元的 Amazon 禮品卡給你。
你應該會在接下來一週左右收到，如果沒有收到，也歡迎寫信到 chou4@sva.edu 跟我確認。

Interview #7 Frank

Intercept interview

Interview #8 Sohyun

Sohyun's Interview (Full-Stack Developer)

Sohyun, a full-stack developer, provided distinct insights heavily prioritizing focus, personal space, and practical amenities that eliminate extra expenditures and distractions. Her experience reflects a strong awareness of both the benefits and drawbacks of shared and open work environments.

1. Productivity and Environment: High Sensitivity to Distraction

Sohyun places the highest value on an environment conducive to concentration, expressing clear boundaries regarding noise and proximity.

- Distraction as a Major Stressor: She noted that noisy colleagues (talking too long or too loudly at their desks) in her current office cause significant stress and affect her work performance.
- The Criticality of Personal Space: Spatial distance (간격) is paramount. She emphasizes the importance of having her own space (나만의 공간) and feels uncomfortable if strangers are too close while she is eating or working. Even when sitting next to people she knows, she still prefers adequate distance.
- Need for Quiet and Privacy: She prefers a quiet environment. The primary amenity she misses is the Phone Booth she used previously at a coworking space (Fast Five). She valued the booths for their soundproofing (no sound could be heard in or out) and the ability to hold private calls without being overheard.
- Ideal Work Environment: She suggests that the ideal workplace should offer a variety of options, including private independent spaces and flexible areas, but that the most crucial element is the distance between seats.

2. Amenities and Facilities: Practicality and Self-Sufficiency

Sohyun sees amenities as tools to enhance convenience and minimize outside excursions and spending, allowing her to remain inside the building all day.

- Value of Free Food and Drink: The provision of various snacks, coffee, tea, milk, and cereal at the coworking space (Fast Five) was highly appreciated because she could stay inside the building all day long without needing to go out. This was particularly valued because it meant no extra expenditure (추가 지출이 없다는게).
- Required Facilities: She desires comfortable chairs and height-adjustable system desks (such as the brand Desker).
- Design and Atmosphere: She suggested that different sections of the office should have distinct atmospheres, perhaps with different lighting (fluorescent vs. soft lighting) and desk colors (white vs. brown), reflecting the varied preferences of workers.
- Need for Outdoor/Rest Space: She currently only leaves the building for a break to "get some air". She stated that if a walking area where she could see sunlight were created inside the building, she would likely stay there all day.
- Meeting Room Friction: She found it inconvenient that meeting rooms at the coworking space could only be reserved for one hour during peak working hours (roughly 10 AM to 4 PM), suggesting that extending this limit to two hours would be a helpful improvement.

3. Community and Belonging: Voluntary Connection and Professional Growth

Although Sohyun did not participate in community events, she has a clear framework for what fosters belonging and what type of interaction she finds valuable.

- Feeling Like an Outsider: When using the coworking space, she felt like a complete outsider ("나는 완전 외부 사람이다") because the long-term tenants/larger groups created a sense of separation or "sense of incongruity (위화감)".
 - Definition of Belonging: For her, belonging requires forming solidarity (유대감) with people and feeling completely comfortable (완벽하게 편해야) in the space.
 - Source of Connection: She associates belonging with cooperation, communication, and solidarity within the team's "fence" (올타리).
 - Ideal Community Interaction: She is interested in meeting people in similar professional fields (e.g., other developers) to learn new things and broaden her experience, as working only with her own company limits opportunities.
 - Condition for Participation: Any community activity must be open to free/voluntary attendance (자유롭게 참석할 수 있다는 전제). She is open to diverse formats, including craft classes (like knitting), tea parties, or professional experience sharing (like conference reviews)

A. Icebreaker & Work Context

Q: Can you briefly introduce yourself? What do you do, what is your job title, and how long have you been with your company?

A: The participant is a full-time employee working as a full-stack developer. They have been working at their current company for about 3 years.

Q: Do you usually work in-person, remote, or hybrid? How often do you get into the office?

A: They currently work fully in-person.

In the past, they worked in a hybrid way: 4 days in the office and 1 day remote per week.

Q: In a typical week, how many days do you come to this space? Are those days mandatory that you come in or do you choose to come in? What makes you want to come in?

A:

- For their current company: they now come in every day (full in-office).

- For the coworking space (FastFive), usage was project-based (about 1–2 months as a tenant) plus fewer than 10 times as a day-pass user.
 - What makes them want to come in:
 - Good colleagues (“좋은 직장 동료”)
 - Positive outlook of the company (“회사 전망이 좋아서”)

Q: [If hybrid] On other days, where do you work? Why do you work there instead of your office/co-working space?

A:

- Previously, they had one work-from-home day, but in this interview they mainly talk about being fully in-office now.
 - They did not go into detail about why they chose home vs office on specific days. → Not fully covered.

Q: What factors do you weigh when you're deciding where to work that day?

A: Not explicitly discussed for daily choice now.

For coworking vs other spaces in the past, they chose the coworking space because:

- It felt quieter and more focused than a library.
 - People there were clearly there to work, which helped them concentrate.

Q: Can you share a recent example of choosing to come in, and what influenced that choice?

A: Not covered explicitly in this interview.

Q: Walk me through what you did here yesterday (or your last visit). Where did you work? What did you do? Did you talk or collaborate with anyone while you were here? Did you participate in any work events or activities? What influences your choice of where to sit or work?

A:

- As a tenant (company using FastFive):
 - They had a small office with their project team.
 - They mainly worked as a developer with their own teammates.
 - They had little to no interaction with other companies or FastFive staff.
 - As a day-pass individual user:
 - They used the open lounge / desk area, like a quiet study room.
 - The space was open but quiet, with people walking by but not noisy.
 - It was a place where people were clearly focused on work, which helped them concentrate.
 - Events/activities: They did not participate in any events. They also do not recall FastFive running networking/community events at that location.
 - Seat choice:
 - In the open lounge, they tried to avoid noisy or high-traffic spots.
 - They prefer areas that are quieter and less disruptive, away from people chatting casually.

B. Community Engagement

Q: Can you describe a time when you participated in a community activity and felt comfortable and engaged?

A:

- At FastFive, they did not participate in any community activities, and they don't recall such events being held.
 - Instead, they referenced past experiences outside coworking, such as:
 - Hackathons and club activities where they felt part of a team.
 - In those contexts, they felt comfortable when they were collaborating with others in a shared group (team/club).

Q: What kind of activities or events would make you want to join? Why?

A:

- They would like activities where they can meet people with similar job roles (e.g., other developers).
 - Reason:
 - They want opportunities to learn something new and hear different perspectives.
 - They feel conversations only within their own company can become limited, so external networks are attractive.
 - Types of activities they mentioned as appealing:
 - Developer meetups or sharing sessions (e.g., talking about conferences).
 - Hobby-based activities like a knitting class.
 - Casual gatherings like a snack/tea meetup where people simply talk.

Q: Have community events or people here ever influenced your decision to come? Can you tell me about a time that happened?

A:

- At FastFive, no events or community programs influenced their decision to come, because:
 - They don't recall such programs being actively offered.
 - Their main motivation to go was workspace quality and focus, not community.

Q: Tell me about a time when you felt uncomfortable or disengaged in this space or during a community activity.

A:

- They felt like an outsider in the coworking space:
 - There were long-term resident teams with many members who seemed close.
 - As someone there temporarily, they felt a strong sense of separation and didn't feel they belonged.
 - They describe it as:
 - "It just felt like I was someone who rented a space, not part of the community."

Q: What does "belonging" mean to you in a workspace? Tell me more about that.

A:

- Belonging means:
 - Having a bond/connection with the people in that space.
 - Feeling completely comfortable when being there.
 - Being part of a team or group where people cooperate and communicate.
- They referenced:
 - In hackathons or clubs, they felt like one of the members inside a shared "circle", collaborating toward something together — that's when they felt true belonging.

Q: Can you describe a moment when you really noticed or felt the community atmosphere here? What was the event? What happened?

A:

- In the coworking space (FastFive), they did not have such a moment.
- They mainly interacted only with their own team, not the broader community.

C. Workspace & Amenity Usage

Q: Can you tell me about the amenities that you have in the working space?

A:

- Phone booths:
 - Several small glass rooms designed for calls.
 - Well soundproofed: inside noise doesn't leak out; outside noise doesn't come in.
 - Anyone can freely use them, not just tenants.
- Pantry / snacks & drinks:
 - Coffee machine, tea, cereal, milk, soy milk.
 - Fridge for shared items and personal lunches.
- Other branches (heard from others):
 - Some locations provide sparkling water during the day and beer after work hours (5–6 pm) via machines.
- All of these are included in the fee, so users can consume as much as they want without extra payment.

Q: Can you tell me about a recent time when the space or amenities helped you get your work done particularly well? What was happening at that moment? What about the space or amenities made things easier or better for you?

A:

- The combination of phone booths + pantry made it possible to:
 - Stay inside the coworking space all day without having to leave to buy coffee or snacks.
 - Maintain focus, because everything needed (drinks, light snacks) was available on-site.
- This reduced the need to go to a convenience store or café, which they saw as a big benefit.

Q: When you think about your workday here, which amenities or features matter most to you? What makes those particular things important for you?

A:

- Most important amenities/features:
 - Snacks and drinks (coffee, etc.)
 - Phone booths for quiet work or calls.
 - Overall interior and cleanliness.
 - Seat spacing — having enough personal space.
- Why:
 - They value not having extra spending for drinks/snacks.
 - They want to be able to stay in one place all day comfortably.

- They feel uncomfortable sitting too close to strangers; personal space is critical to feeling at ease.

Q: If one of them changed or went away, how, if at all, would that influence your experience or decision to keep using this space?

A:

- If food/drinks were removed:
 - They would feel less positive because part of the value is “no extra cost and no going out.”
 - If there were no phone booths:
 - It would be harder to find a quiet space for focused work or calls, which they value highly.

Q: What makes this specific space feel “worth coming to,” if it does? How do the space, people, or atmosphere contribute to that feeling? How might you describe that to a friend who’s never been here?

A:

- “Worth coming” factors:
 - The space is quiet and work-oriented, unlike some noisy libraries or cafés.
 - All-day stay is possible thanks to snacks/drinks.
 - Variety of spaces: lounge, pantry area, work desks.
 - They would describe it as:
 - A place where you can work, take breaks, and eat without leaving the building, with a calm, focused atmosphere.

Q: Is there anything that feels missing or that could better support the way you work here? Tell me more about how that affects your experience now. What would be different for you if that were improved?

A:

- Things they feel are missing or could be improved:
 - More phone booths or equivalent in current office (for private, quiet calls).
 - Better control over noise from other people at their desks; some colleagues talk loudly and it stresses them.
 - Meeting room reservation:
 - In FastFive, small offices did not have internal meeting rooms.
 - They had to book shared meeting rooms in 1-hour slots through app/web during core hours (around 10–4).
 - For longer meetings, they had to repeatedly re-book, which was inconvenient.
 - They would prefer a 2-hour block minimum.
 - Outdoor or walking space with sunlight:
 - They said if there were a sunlit walking area inside the building, they could stay there all day without needing to go outside.

Q: Have you seen anything in other offices or coworking spaces that you wish existed here? What was it, and what about it worked well there? How do you imagine it might affect your experience if it were available here?

A:

- Phone booths:
 - They think having proper call booths in their current office would greatly help manage noise and privacy.

- Height-adjustable desks (“standing desks”):
 - They like desks you can raise and lower.
 - Being able to sit or stand freely is part of their ideal setup.
 - Variety in sections:
 - Different areas with different lighting and atmosphere (e.g., bright vs soft lighting) and different furniture colors (white desks vs wooden desks).
 - They believe these variations would allow different types of workers to choose environments that fit their style and improve comfort and focus.

D. Retention & Membership Decisions

Q: Can you recall a time when you thought about leaving the space? What made you feel that way?

A:

- They didn’t explicitly describe a moment of wanting to “leave” FastFive entirely, but:
 - They felt like an outsider with low belonging (only “someone who rented space”).
 - The meeting room booking constraints (short slots) were frustrating.

Q: Can you tell me about a time when something in the space wasn’t available or didn’t work the way you expected? What was the situation, and what didn’t work or was missing? How did that affect your work or your day?

A:

- Meeting room system:
 - Small offices had no private meeting rooms; they had to use shared ones.

- During core hours, bookings were limited to 1 hour.
 - For longer sessions, they had to:
 - Book for 1 hour → leave or re-book → continue, which was disruptive and inconvenient.

Q: Were there any obstacles that made it hard for you to feel engaged or connected? (e.g., scheduling, social dynamics, the environment)

A:

- Social dynamics:
 - Existing long-term tenants had strong internal communities, making the participant feel separate.
 - Lack of structured community events:
 - There were no clear opportunities to meet other tenants, reducing chances to build connections or engage.

Q: If you had the chance to change something about the space, what would you consider changing?

A:

- Add or adjust:
 - More/longer meeting room slots (e.g., 2-hour blocks).
 - Quiet norms or etiquette enforcement to reduce loud talking near desks.
 - Dedicated walking/rest area with sunlight.
 - Better access method:
 - Currently uses a physical card; they'd like to use NFC on their phone instead of carrying a card.

Q: On the flip side, what experiences or features of the space made you want to stay?
What kept you coming back?

A:

- Full-day usability thanks to snacks/drinks.
- Quiet, focused atmosphere (especially compared to cafés).
- Variety of seating and lounge areas where you can both work and rest within the same floor.

Q: What is your ideal working environment?

A:

An ideal environment would include:

- Different types of spaces:
 - Shared office areas.
 - Independent quiet zones for deep work.
 - Relaxation zones (for breaks or casual conversation).
- Diverse atmospheres:
 - Different sections with different moods (lighting, furniture colors).
- Good furniture:
 - Comfortable chairs.
 - Height-adjustable desks / standing desks.
- Enough personal space:
 - Sufficient distance between seats so they don't feel crowded, even with people they know.

- Clear separation of work vs rest areas, but all within the same building.

E. Wrap-Up

Q: Is there any experience or story you think is important for understanding your office experience that we haven't discussed yet?

A:

- They emphasized again that:
 - Seat spacing and personal territory are very important.
 - They are sensitive to noise and feel significant stress when colleagues are loud or talk long on calls at their desks.
 - This makes them value spaces that support quiet, respectful behavior and provide options to escape noise (like phone booths).

Interview #9 Hyukjin

1. Productivity, Focus, and Space Design

Employees demand flexible environments that prioritize deep focus, often viewing the traditional office setup as a source of distraction.

- Need for Controlled Environments: Interruptions, loud phone calls, and executive offices with open doors causing echoes are major distractions in open-plan offices. Employees often prefer working from home specifically to avoid these distractions and to maintain concentration.

- Demand for Quiet, Private Spaces: Phone booths or small, soundproof rooms are highly valued amenities, allowing for quiet work or private calls without being overheard. One participant would use large, rarely occupied conference rooms to ensure quiet for school meetings.

- Flexibility and Choice: The ideal workplace must accommodate individuals who need quiet "complete lockdown mode" versus those who thrive in social settings, recognizing that fitting everyone into the "same box" is ineffective.

- Design and Psychological Comfort: High, 7-foot cubicle walls feel "hostile," "siloed," and "gray and depressing". Conversely, low, clear, and unstructured partitions are preferred as they feel more communal. Comfortable distance and the security of "my own space" (나만의 공간) are crucial for feeling comfortable while working.

2. Community, Engagement, and Belonging

A sense of belonging is derived primarily from genuine human connections, respect, and feeling valued by leadership, not mandatory social functions or physical presence alone.

- Belonging Requires Appreciation and Comfort: Belonging is defined as forming solidarity (유대감) with colleagues and feeling completely comfortable (완벽하게 편해야) in the space. The lack of appreciation from leadership after downsizing leads to a decrease in loyalty and willingness to "go above and beyond".

- Rejection of Forced Socializing: High-social events (like drinking or happy hours) can feel inauthentic, forcing people to "put on a show" or "pretend to be another person". Employees prefer to meet closer friends outside the office or in simple, low-pressure settings.

- Preference for Knowledge and Hobbies: Ideal community activities are those that offer practical value or personal interest, such as Japanese stitching classes, mini farmers markets, or professional discussions among peers (e.g., meeting other developers).

- Voluntary and Controlled Interaction: For introverted individuals, one-on-one interactions or panelist/sharing knowledge events where they can listen are preferred over active networking. For networking events, it is necessary to be prepared by knowing the purpose, topic, and dress code.

- The "Work" vs. "Community" Divide: For one participant, involving managers or senior staff (대리나 부장님) turns a comfortable community event into "work" (일) due to the introduction of control and direction.

3. Amenities and Tangible Value

Amenities must provide clear, tangible value—either through cost savings or practical support—to make the commute "worth it".

- Free Food and Drink are Major Incentives: Access to free coffee, tea, and food (like the Mini Farmers Market with free groceries) is a significant draw, especially for commuters, as it eliminates the need for additional daily expenditure and encourages workers to stay in the building all day.

- Functional Infrastructure Issues: Failure of basic operations (e.g., non-working elevators, fluctuating temperature control, or, in one case, expired snacks) negatively impacts the workplace experience, even if they are ultimately tolerated. Greasy keyboards/mice and faulty computer cameras were specific equipment issues cited.

- Comfort and Health Amenities: Highly valued items include:
 - Comfortable, good quality chairs.
 - Adjustable desks.
 - Sufficient electrical outlets.
 - Access to natural light and a walking/outdoor area with sunlight to stay refreshed.
 - In the case of the Penn Ct participant, two 27-inch monitors were deemed essential for coding work.

4. Hybrid Work Barriers and Support Systems

The successful adoption of a hybrid model is hindered by a lack of predictability and difficulty accessing timely support.

- Lack of Visibility and Predictability: Not knowing who is in the office (especially key support personnel or resources) creates hesitancy to commute, as the trip may be unnecessary if communication could have been done virtually anyway. There is often no office-wide schedule or system to check attendance.
- Delayed Support: Support staff (e.g., HR, IT) often work remotely, making it difficult to get immediate, in-person help for technical issues (like computer login problems), forcing employees to rely on emails or wait until the next day.
- Communication Gaps: Miscommunication can lead to unnecessary commutes for meetings that could have been virtual, highlighting the need for clearer communication protocols beyond reliance on email or inactive tools like Slack

Q: Can you briefly introduce yourself? What do you do, what is your job title, and how long have you been with your company?

A:

- The participant is 25 years old (NYU undergraduate student)
- Currently works as a freelance actor and has been acting for about 3.5 years.
- Previously worked as an intern in a quantum computing / software engineering role in Korea (Busan).

Q: Do you usually work in-person, remote, or hybrid? How often do you get into the office?

A:

- As an actor now:
 - Works as a freelancer, going on-site to sets whenever called.
- During the previous internship:
 - Worked in a hybrid model: 3 days in the office, 2 days working from home.

Q: In a typical week, how many days do you come to this space? Are those dates mandatory that you come in or you choose to come in? What makes you want to come in?

A:

- As an intern:
 - The 3 in-office days were part of the company schedule (not self-chosen).
- Reasons he wanted to join that internship / company:
 - It was located in Busan, which felt like a new experience for him (he had lived in the US).
 - The company provided housing instead of paying full cash salary, which he really appreciated.
 - He could live and work together with close middle-school friends, which he found very special.

Q: [If hybrid] On other days, where do you work? Why do you work there instead of your office/co-working space?

A:

- On remote days during the internship:
 - Worked from home.
 - Typical pattern:
 - Morning to lunch: meetings + working (e.g., reports).
 - Afternoon: more flexible; he could use time more freely for his own activities after work tasks.

Q: What factors do you weigh when you're deciding where to work that day?

A:

- Not deeply discussed as a daily choice between spaces.
- For the internship, schedule was mostly fixed by the company (3 office / 2 home).
- For acting jobs now, location is defined by the shooting site, not by his choice.

Q: Can you share a recent example of choosing to come in, and what influenced that choice?

A:

- Not specifically covered in this interview.

Q: Walk me through what you did here yesterday (or your last visit). Where did you work? What did you do? Did you talk or collaborate with anyone while you were here? Did you participate in any work events or activities? What influences your choice of where to sit or work?

A:

- During the internship in Busan:
 - The company had acquired a 9-story building near Dongguk University's Busan campus (a "center").
 - He worked inside this new office environment with about 14 people total.
 - It was a newly opened space, so everything was new: desks, layout, basic water and instant coffee.
 - He mostly sat at a desk and coded as a software engineer.
 - No detailed story about seat choice (e.g., near windows, etc.), and no internal events were mentioned.

B. Community Engagement

Q: Can you describe a time when you participated in a community activity and felt comfortable and engaged?

A:

- At the internship/company:
 - There were no internal community or social events.
- External events he joined:
 - Quantum Korea (a quantum tech event).
 - A motorsport / car event in Busan.
 - A beer event.
- How he felt:
 - He went mainly with close friends (best friends) and enjoyed it as a casual outing.
 - Felt it was fun, varied, and interesting, but not deeply emotional—more like light experiences (take photos, look at cars, enjoy the vibe).

Q: What kind of activities or events would make you want to join? Why?

A:

- For hobbies:

- He would be interested in communities connected to his personal interests, such as:
 - Camera / video / film
 - Acting / aspiring actors
- For career-related communities (company / tech):
 - He's less interested; considers that "work," and does not feel the need to join extra work-related communities on top.

Q: Have community events or people here ever influenced your decision to come? Can you tell me about a time that happened?

A:

- At the internship office: No internal community events, so nothing influenced attendance through community.
- For external events: he mainly decided to go because friends were going and the events looked fun/interesting.

Q: Tell me about a time when you felt uncomfortable or disengaged in this space or during a community activity.

A:

- At events in general, he didn't feel particularly uncomfortable; he usually didn't stay long (2–3 hours), so no strong negative experiences.
- Regarding community dynamics in general, he dislikes:
 - Situations where someone is overly controlling or trying to "lead" everything in the community.
 - Authoritarian or top-down vibes in a space that should be open.

Q: What does "belonging" mean to you in a workspace? Tell me more about that.

A:

- Not explicitly defined in the interview, but implicitly:
 - He wants community spaces to feel public, open, and not controlled by bosses or managers.
 - Belonging in a community = freedom to be there as yourself, without being "controlled."
- He draws a line between:
 - Work → private, hierarchical, where instructions and control are normal.
 - Community → public, open, where no one should strongly control or direct others.

Q: Can you describe a moment when you really noticed or felt the community atmosphere here? What was the event? What happened?

A:

- For the internship office, he doesn't describe a strong "community atmosphere."
- For external events (Quantum Korea, motorsport, beer event), he experienced them more as fun outings with friends, not as deep community-building spaces.

C. Workspace & Amenity Usage

Q: Can you tell me about the amenities that you have in the working space?

A:

- In the Busan office (internship):
 - It was a newly opened building, so:
 - Water and instant mix coffee were available.
 - New desks (new "desk system") were installed.
 - Staff size was small (around 14 people).
 - No advanced amenities yet, since it was newly opened and not fully set up for lots of staff.

Q: Can you tell me about a recent time when the space or amenities helped you get your work done particularly well? What was happening at that moment? What about the space or amenities made things easier or better for you?

A:

- The participant emphasized monitors as critical:
 - For coding, at least one 27-inch monitor is necessary.
 - Ideally he would like two monitors, but one 27" is already a must-have.
- The new desks and monitor setup helped him do software work more comfortably.

Q: When you think about your workday here, which amenities or features matter most to you? What makes those particular things important for you?

A:

Most important features/amenities:

- Big monitors (27 inches or larger)
- Snacks and drinks
 - Especially energy drinks (e.g., Bacchus, energy drinks for non-coffee moments).
 - He can drink coffee, but also likes classic canned/instant coffee.

- Personal desk fan in summer:
 - Because Busan is very hot, having a small fan at the desk is essential for comfort.

Why:

- Large monitor is crucial for productivity and clarity when coding.
- Snacks and drinks help him maintain energy during work without going out.
- Personal fan directly affects physical comfort and ability to focus.

Q: If one of them changed or went away, how, if at all, would that influence your experience or decision to keep using this space?

A:

- If there were no proper monitors, it would be much harder to work efficiently.
- If there were no snacks/energy drinks, it's not a deal-breaker but would feel like a missed opportunity.
- If there is no cooling (fan/AC), especially in Busan summer, it would significantly decrease comfort.

Q: What makes this specific space feel “worth coming to,” if it does? How do the space, people, or atmosphere contribute to that feeling? How might you describe that to a friend who’s never been here?

A:

- The internship office felt new and well set up (new building, new desks).
- The biggest things that made it “worth it”:
 - Location in Busan (new city experience).
 - Housing provided by the company.
 - Being able to live and work with middle-school friends, which is very rare for him.
- To a friend, he might describe it as:
 - “A new, modern office in Busan where I got to work in quantum computing and live with my old friends.”

Q: Is there anything that feels missing or that could better support the way you work here? Tell me more about how that affects your experience now. What would be different for you if that were improved?

A:

- Missing / would-like-to-have items:
 - Personal desk fan (especially in summer).

- Energy drinks and snacks available in the office.
- Possibly a nap/lying-down space (he mentioned liking beds/places to lie down).
- These would help him refresh and recover energy during long workdays.

Q: Have you seen anything in other offices or coworking spaces that you wish existed here? What was it, and what about it worked well there? How do you imagine it might affect your experience if it were available here?

A:

- He hasn't worked in many Korean offices, so he doesn't have a big comparison set.
- But in general, he feels monitor quality and basic comfort are non-negotiable, and snacks/energy drinks plus cooling would significantly improve the experience.

D. Retention & Membership Decisions

(이 인터뷰는 “membership/retention”보다는 인턴십 선택 & 회사 선택 동기에 가까워서 그 관점으로 정리할게.)

Q: Can you recall a time when you thought about leaving the space? What made you feel that way?

A:

- He did not describe a specific moment of wanting to leave the office or internship due to the space.
- No major negative spatial trigger was mentioned.

Q: Can you tell me about a time when something in the space wasn't available or didn't work the way you expected? What was the situation, and what didn't work or was missing? How did that affect your work or your day?

A:

- Since it was a newly opened building, many things were still minimal.
- However, he didn't emphasize a specific failure or malfunction—just that amenities were basic.

Q: Were there any obstacles that made it hard for you to feel engaged or connected? (e.g., scheduling, social dynamics, the environment)

A:

- He did not talk about feeling disconnected in the office community.
- The main friction he mentioned was about not liking controlled community settings in general (when leaders/managers try to dominate), but this was more hypothetical than specific to his internship.

Q: If you had the chance to change something about the space, what would you consider changing?

A:

- Add:
 - Personal desk fans for summer.
 - Energy drinks and snacks.
 - Possibly rest or nap spaces (like a bed or napping corner).

Q: On the flip side, what experiences or features of the space made you want to stay? What kept you coming back?

A:

- Not exactly “stay vs leave” but reasons he valued the internship:
 - Housing support instead of full cash (good deal for him as a US citizen managing tax, etc.).
 - New experience in Busan.
 - Being able to live and work with close friends from middle school (rare opportunity).

Q: What is your ideal working environment?

A:

- For “office-type” work:
 - Decent monitor & desk.
 - Basic comfort amenities (cooling, snacks).
- But his true ideal working environment is actually not an office:
 - He says his favorite place is the film set, where he works as an actor.
 - He loves acting because:
 - He can experience roles and lives he could never have in real life (doctor, lawyer, spy, firefighter, etc.).
 - Acting gives him new experiences and lets him “try on” different professions through performance.
- The presence of directors and film staff supports him to fully immerse in those roles.

E. Wrap-Up

Q: Is there any experience or story you think is important for understanding your office experience that we haven’t discussed yet?

A:

- He didn't add extra points about the office, but clearly emphasized:
 - He values new experiences, freedom from control in communities, and being able to live/work with close friends.
 - For physical space: monitor, fan, snacks, energy drinks, and rest options are most important.

Intercept Interview

Excuse me, do you have couple of minute to talk?

We're partnering with Industrious, we want to know your experience of using this space.

1. Working type
 - a. How often do you come into the office?
2. Space
 - a. How often do you use this space?
 - b. When you want to relax or chat with someone, which spot here do you prefer? Why?
 - c. What is ONE THING you want to change about the building space? -> Why
3. Event
 - a. When is the last time you joined a event that you really like? Why?
 - b. What is the worst experience you have in an event?
 - c. If you could make a wish for an event, what would it be? -> Why?

Thank you for your time.

Participant 1

Interviewer:

How often do you come into the office building each week? And how often do you come down to this space?

Participant:

Usually three days a week.

Interviewer:

When you want to take a break from work or talk to people, which areas do you usually go to?

Participant:

I usually stay on our floor. I rarely come down here.

Interviewer:

Oh, you don't come downstairs? So you mostly stay in your office? Is there a reason for that?

Participant:

Yes, I tend to stay on our floor rather than this area.

Interviewer:

If you could change one thing about this space, what would it be?

Participant:

More places to work comfortably.

Interviewer:

We know the building occasionally hosts events. When was the last time you joined one?

Participant:

I don't really join them. I'm focused on my desk work and don't get involved much.

Interviewer:

Is that because you're not interested? Or is it because the events aren't relevant to you?

Participant:

A bit of both. We mostly work in meeting rooms or with our team. The workspace we use is already great for what we need.

Interviewer:

Great, thank you so much.
